EPISCOPAL BISHOP VANISHES ON TRAIN TRIP

BEAMISH CHARGES $20,000 OFFER ON VOTE MACHINES

HARRISBURG, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth, testified in Dauphin County Court today that he had been offered a $20,000 "bribe" by a representative of the Shoup Voting Machine Company. The secretary said the offer was made by George O'Brien, "a former reporter" and erstwhile federal officer of the Port of Philadelphia, in connection with the contract for purchase of voting machines for Philadelphia County.

Beamish, in his first statement, placed the amount of the "bribe" at $25,000, but immediately corrected himself to make it $20,000.

William T. Conner, solicitor to the Philadelphia County Commissioners, who have brought an action to prevent Beamish from letting the contract for the Philadelphia machines, objected to Beamish's charge. Attorney General William Schnader, defending Beamish, protested and the court admitted the testimony.

Resuming, Beamish testified:

"At 11:25 last Wednesday morning a man appeared in my office. He was George O'Brien, formerly a reporter and worked with me on the Philadelphia Evening Times 20 years ago. He had been a federal officer of the port of Philadelphia.

"I asked him what he was doing now and he said he was 'pressing the bricks,' which was his colloquialism for looking for a job. He said I could help him very much. I asked him how.

"He said by awarding the contract for voting machines for Philadelphia to the Shoup Voting Machine Company."

QUOTES AGENT

Beamish said he remarked that the contract would go to "a responsible bidder." Then, he charged, O'Brien leaned close and said:

"If you will give this to Shoup—you needn't do anything wrong—it will help me. There is $20,000 in it for you."

The Secretary said State Treasurer Edward Martin entered the room shortly after O'Brien departed, and the matter was discussed with newspapermen at that time. P. Stephen Stahlnecker, secretary to Gov. Pinchot, was also notified, but in the absence of the Governor, Beamish said, it was agreed to withhold a public statement on the incident.

MISS HELEN F. DANNER, 21 . . . . . IN HER RIDING COSTUME

HORSEMAN WED TO SOCIETY GIRL

Society and polo circles today were surprised when it was announced that Helen F. Danner, young daughter of the T. Jefferson Danners, of 6843 Thomas boulevard, and Udell S. Madden, riding master, polo player and former army officer, were married quietly in Uniontown on January 13.

The ceremony was performed by a clerk in the office of the register. Madden, who gave his address as Fox Chapel road, was, according to his statement to the license clerk, divorced at Reno last November 16.

Madden conducts the U. S. Madden Riding Academy on the Squaw Run road and has been active in polo circles, having captained the 308th Cavalry team when it went to Virginia recently.

The bride's father is the local manager of the Fidelity Mutual Insurance Company.

At the Danner home this morning the bride's father said:

"I have nothing to say."

Eaton Refuses Post As County Solicitor

Attorney O. K. Eaton, mentioned for county solicitor, doesn't want the post, he said today. His statement:

"I am not, and have never been, a candidate for the position of county solicitor. It is true, however, that Commissioner Mansfield called to see me and asked me if I would consider such appointment. If such appointment were tendered me, and it has not been, I would be unable to accept it."

GREGG ENDS MELLON'S DEFENSE

Answer Closed, but Patman Renews All Charges in Hearing on Impeachment

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Secretary Mellon's answer to impeachment charges was concluded before the House Judiciary Committee today, but they were immediately renewed by his accuser, Representative Wright Patman (Dem.), of Texas.

Alexander W. Gregg representing the Secretary of the Treasury, made a sweeping disavowal of all the charges, submitted to questions by committee members and indicated his willingness to be questioned by Patman.

Such procedure, however, was ruled out of order by Chairman Sumners on the suggestion of Representative Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri. It was agreed, however, that Patman might suggest questions to committee members for propounding to Gregg.

LIST SOUGHT

Before he left the stand, Gregg was directed to supply a list of the present holders of the bank stock Mellon sold when appointed secretary. He demurred, however, to a suggestion that all Mellon's holdings be presented and the request was not pressed. Gregg explained:

"It would be possible to get it, but I want to suggest the seriousness of spreading private affairs before the public."

Patman, who will continue tomorrow, renewed his charges Mellon "brought pressure" to obtain the Barco concession in Colombia for the Gulf Oil Company after admitting he was without proof.

Mellon had denied discussing the concession with President Olaya, of Colombia, or a credit extension to that republic with bankers.

Patman opened his testimony today by describing a loan of personal Mellon funds to the Union Gulf Corporation.

COLLATERAL FOR BONDS

Gregg said Mellon had supplied part of the securities to be used as collateral for a bond issue. He said the transaction was entirely legal. He added:

"Mr. Mellon has never attended even a stockholders' meeting of any corporation since he has been secretary. He has given his proxy."

In reply to questions by Representative LaGuardia (Rep.), of New York, Gregg said Mellon owns a minority interest in the Koppers Construction Company, of Pittsburgh.

Patman had called attention to this connection as giving Mellon an interest in Soviet Russia because of a business arrangement between the Koppers Company and Russia.

Gregg named a Mr. Wallace, a vice president of the Gulf Oil Company with offices in New York, as the official who negotiated the Barco concession in Colombia. He further said Mellon was the beneficiary of the sale of his stock in A. Overholt Company, distillery, which was disposed of when the secretary took office.

'Alfalfa Bill' Sips Coffee Testifying in House

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Sitting at his ease with a cigar and black coffee at hand, "Alfalfa Bill" Murray—otherwise the Governor of Oklahoma—counseled Congress today to institute banking reforms.

He testified before the House Ways and Means Committee, introduced by Representative McKeown, a fellow Democrat of his state. McKeown is sponsor of a bill to remove the 10 per cent tax on state bank note issues, which was first presented about 15 years ago by Murray when he was a House member.

The bill seeks to repeal the law in order that the so-called "Scotch" banks in states could issue notes on stored agricultural and similar products.

Chairman Collier and the other committeemen accorded the plain-worded Oklahoma executive unusual courtesy. As McKeown concluded his introduction, he said the witness "may have to drink some coffee because he hasn't had all of his morning coffee yet."

Murray then obtained permission to sit down and talk in support of the McKeown bill. It had been granted but once before, and then to Secretary Mellon when he was ill.

Conflict Over Manchuria Declared 'Inevitable;' Nipponese Spurn Pact

International News Service.

PEIPING, Jan. 18.—Unless the Soviets and Japanese have a secret understanding, a clash between their armies within the next few days is inevitable, a spokesman for Marshal Chang Hseuh-Liang, former governor of Manchuria, declared today.

The expedition now being carried on against Pinhsien, Manchuria, by a Chinese "puppet" army backed by the Japanese, is bound to result in armed Soviet resistance, the spokesman declared. He expressed the belief the Pinhsien expedition was the forerunner of a drive against Harbin, center of the Soviet sphere of influence in Manchuria.

DRIVE IN NORTH

HARBIN, Manchuria, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Pinhsien, known as the "Chinchow of the North," and commanded by the last group of Chinese Nationalist troops in North Manchuria, today was the target of a concerted Japanese drive in which they are using a Chinese "puppet" army.

Several towns in the vicinity of Pinhsien, 50 miles east of Harbin, were bombed from Japanese airplanes manned by Chinese "puppet" soldiers acting under them.

JAPAN SPURNS PACT

TOKIO, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Japan today officially announced she does not want a non-agression pact with Russia.

Neither does she want any sort of military alliance, a government communique stated, similar to that existing between France and Russia.

PARK AWAITS KLINE RULING

District Attorney Andrew T. Park this morning said if the State Supreme Court should issue an order today refusing Mayor Charles H. Kline a change of venue for the hearing of the malfeasance in office charges against him, he would start the trial here tomorrow as scheduled.

If the decision is not forthcoming, Park will ask that Common Pleas Court continue the case in order to hold in force 64 subpenas for that number of witnesses.

Vatican to Radio Anniversary Mass

VATICAN CITY, Jan. 18.—The pontifical mass to be said in St. Peter's Church on February 12, the tenth anniversary of the coronation of Pope Pius XI, will be broadcast throughout the world, it was announced today. His holiness will be present at the ceremony.

500 Lepers March On City; Stir Panic

TOKIO, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Five hundred lepers, shouting and blowing bugles, marched into the city of Kumamoto today, protesting against conditions in a sanatorium near here and threw the city into a panic.

Firemen and police repulsed them after a two-hour fight.

Insured Others, Not Self, House Burns

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Jan. 18.—(INS.)—The home of O. O. Baugman, insurance agent, was destroyed by fire last night. The loss was $12,000. The home was uninsured because Baughman said he was so busy selling insurance to others.

Mr. Hoover's Plan for Financing the Financiers

MR. HOOVER, who had been President for nearly three years and who in all that time had done nothing practical to relieve the depression, urged the Democratic House, when it had been in operation only three weeks, to HURRY in adopting relief measures.

The Democratic House, under the able leadership of Speaker Garner, promptly responded.

It pledged itself not to play partisan politics with emergency relief proposals, and by a vote of 335 to 55 the House has rushed through one of the most important and far-reaching measures that will receive consideration at the present session of Congress.

This is the Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill, recommended by the Republican administration, the purpose of which is "to provide emergency financing facilities for financial institutions."

IT CREATES a "reconstruction finance corporation" with a capital stock of $500,000,000 to be subscribed by the Treasury of the United States.

The management of this corporation will be vested in a board of directors of seven members, including the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of Agriculture and the governor of the Federal Reserve Board.

Authority is granted to sell bonds totaling $1,500,000,000, and from the proceeds make loans to banks, trust companies, building and loan associations, insurance companies, intermediate credit banks, agricultural credit corporations, livestock credit corporations, and farmers' associations.

Upon approval of the Interstate Commerce Commission, properly secured loans may also be made to railroads and railways.

But the House bill specifically prohibits any loans or advances by this emergency corporation upon foreign securities and foreign acceptances, "or for the purpose of assisting in carrying or liquidating foreign securities or acceptances."

IT IS TRUE that this measure represents, as Chairman Steagall, of the House Committee on Banking and Currency says, "a departure from the principles and policies to which we have adhered through the years."

It is true that neither the Committee on Banking and Currency nor the House itself has had the time to study and debate this measure as thoroughly as its importance would seem to warrant.

But this is an emergency measure, belatedly drafted, hastily considered, inadequately debated, and rushed to a vote in an effort to restore confidence, re-enforce credit, and rehabilitate the economic life of the nation.

IT IS AN ADMINISTRATION MEASURE TO FINANCE THE FINANCIERS.

It is a measure characteristic of this Republican government of bankers by bankers and for bankers, to relieve the bankers who have for the most part in this time of national emergency, proved themselves either reckless speculators or penny-pinching pawnbrokers.

SPEAKER GARNER and the Democratic House, whose patriotic attitude in this emergency is responsible for the prompt passage of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation bill in the House, believe that the new Congress should have been called in extra session last spring in order that it might deal deliberately with the grave problems growing out of the economic crisis.

But President Hoover turned a deaf ear to every suggestion that he avail himself of the assistance of Congress, and the probability is that Congress would not be in session now but for the fact that circumstances beyond Mr. Hoover's control have convened it.

The haste that the Democratic House has felt bound to resort to in putting this emergency measure upon its passage is the price which Congress and the people of the United States have finally had to pay for the high-handed and fatuous refusal of a Republican President to call the new Congress in

Church Alarmed as Duluth Leader Fails to Arrive In East for Sermons

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The whereabouts of the Rt. Rev. Granville Gaylord Bennett, Episcopal bishop of Duluth, Minn., were a subject of concern at the office of the Episcopal diocese of Rhode Island today. The Mid-Western prelate failed to arrive to fill week-end engagements and his office in Duluth reported he had not been in touch there since last Wednesday, when he presumably started East.

Bishop Bennett was to have reached here last Thursday to take over for the next two months the duties of the Most Rev. James DeWolf Perry, bishop of Rhode Island and presiding bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of America, while the latter attended to the affairs of the church in New York City.

Bishop Bennett, regarded as one of the most brilliant speakers of the denomination, had several speaking engagements and a confirmation over the week-end.

PINCHOT OATH UPHELD

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot today won his loyalty pledge case when the Supreme Court dismissed the appeals of George J. Harding, Philadelphia lawyer, and Mabel M. Hamilton, a notary public.

Miss Hamilton had filed a bill in the Dauphin County Court questioning the right of the Governor to refuse her renewal of her commission as a notary public because she declined to subscribe to what she considered "a political pledge."

Harding brought a taxpayer's suit in the same court to restrain the Secretary of Property and Supplies and the State Treasurer from printing and paying for printing a pledge not authorized by law.

The Dauphin County Court upheld the Governor and the cases were appealed to the State Supreme Court and argued last November.

Former Expressmen Charged With Theft

Two former employes of the American Railways Express Company, Ernest McPherson, 33, and Regis V. Doyle, 32, were accused of tossing shipped merchandise from trains as they passed the house of an accomplice in Braeburn before the United States Commissioner today. They waived hearing. A third defendant, Leonard E. Whitesell, was held for court.

Wilkerson to Face Probe by Senate

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—The Senate Judiciary Committee today ordered an investigation of the nomination of James H. Wilkerson, of Illinois, to be judge of the Seventh circuit. A committee headed by Senator Borah, (Rep.) of Idaho, will do the job. Judge Wilkinson sentenced Al Capone.

Death Delays Test For 'Mercy' Slayer

MILLERSBURG, O., Jan. 18.—(INS.)—A sanity hearing for James Stenhouse, 39-year-old "mercy" slayer of his infant son, was delayed today because of the sudden death of the wife of Judge R. B. Putnam, who is to name a board of three alienists.

SENATE SUB-COMMITTEE APPROVES DIRECT JOBLESS AID

VOTES FOR BILL FOUGHT BY HOOVER

$375,000,000 Would Be Available for Needy; Urged By Labor, Welfare Heads

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The issue of direct federal aid for the unemployed, to which President Hoover is opposed, neared the Senate today when one of its sub-committees approved legislation authorizing $375,000,000.

The Costigan-LaFollette bill proposing $125,000,000 for this winter and $250,000,000 for the next fiscal year, was indorsed by the Senate manufactures sub-committee which has been studying it after hearings.

The bill was immediately taken up and discussed by the full committee, but a vote was postponed until tomorrow because of failure to obtain a quorum.

UNANIMOUS VOTE

The sub-committee which has held extended hearings on the bill spent less than 10 minutes approving it and all those present voted for it.

An immediate appropriation of $125,000,000 would be authorized for this winter and the remainder would be appropriated for the next fiscal year beginning July 1.

The funds provided by the bill would be allocated to the states on the basis of their population, the amounts they themselves spent for relief and their needs as judged by a federal emergency relief board.

URGED BY LABOR

The chief of the Children's Bureau of the Labor Department would be charged with administration of the act under supervision of the board.

The bill was favored during hearings by a large number of relief workers and the American Federation of Labor.

Walter S. Gifford, President Hoover's relief director, testified, however, that he believed the problem would be met by states, counties and municipalities with the aid of voluntary contributions.

RAIL PAY MEET RECESSES

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Today's conference between railway presidents and brotherhood and union leaders took a recess today to give both sides more time to study differences arising from the discussion of stabilization of employment and other proposals made by the labor group.

Although both sides insisted nothing definite had been decided, indications were that the managements were unfavorable to some portions of the labor program, including the six-hour day, although friendly to other proposals.

The labor program was advanced as a counter proposal to the suggestion of a voluntary 10 per cent wage reduction with the implication that if the presidents agreed to it or a large part of it, labor would be willing to take the wage cut for one year.

Anderson, Canadian Soloist, Found Shot

HAMILTON, Ont., Jan. 18.—(AP)—George W. Anderson, Canadian soloist, was found with two bullet wounds in his head on a side road off the Niagara Highway early today.

After singing in the choir of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church last evening as usual, Anderson disappeared. Today he told police that as he drove down the highway, he saw two bright flashes from the roadside and that was all he knew.

BOND RACKET CURB SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(INS.)—Drastic legislation to curb the "foreign bond racket built up by American bankers," will be framed by Senator Johnson (Rep.), of California, he declared today.

Sitting behind a desk piled high with an overnight accumulation of "new leads" in the Finance Committee's probe of foreign loan transactions by New York financiers, Johnson declared:

"I am not sure yet just how far I can go in trying to remedy the abuses this investigation has disclosed. But I intend to go to the limit of legal authority."

Scout's Rifle Kills Lightkeeper's Son

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Jan. 18.—(AP)—Elmer Byrnes, 14, son of the lightkeeper at Iroquois Point, was killed when a rifle in the hands of Cortland Holton, 16, was accidentally discharged today.

Holton was one of a party of Boy Scouts who had gone to Iroquois Point to spend the day. Against the orders of the scout masters, six rifles were taken along by the boys.

RELIEF ASKED BY M'KEESPORT

Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport has again warned the Allegheny County Board of Poor Directors that something must be done immediately to help suffering families in his city.

Relief funds formerly distributed by the Poor Board have been cut off in all parts of the county for almost a week because the financial means of the Board have been exhausted.

The request of the Poor Board for a three-mill poor tax levy, double that of last year, has been taken under advisement by County Commissioners. Counsel for the Poor Board told commissioners that a bank had refused to make a loan to the board in anticipation of taxes because of "unfavorable publicity" to which the board has been subjected.

In McKeesport, 2,500 families were being helped at the time relief was suddenly cut off. McKeesport has a fund of $30,000 which may be used in the emergency.

THORNBURG CAR CUT DROPPED

Service on the street car line between Crafton and Thornburg will not be reduced for the present, Thomas Fitzgerald, vice president of the Pittsburgh Railways Company, said today. Removal of cars in all but the peak hours had been proposed.

The Traction Conference Board recently recommended no change in the service for the reason that it would work a severe hardship on the Borough of Thornburg because it is far removed from other transportation. A large delegation of Thornburg citizens expressed their views at a hearing before the Traction Conference Board.

Japanese Author Explains Invasion

The trouble in Manchuria is the curtain-raiser on the expansion in the Western Pacific, Winnosuke Adachi, Japanese author and lecturer, declared today before the Hungry Club in the Fort Pitt Hotel. He said:

"Our interest in Japan is not that of a country seeking to annex newterritory. We are fighting for a stable source of food supply. We do not want our people to occupy South Manchurit. Chinese, not Japanese farmers in South Manchurit provide us with food and with fertilizer necessary for our rice fields. We are in Manchurit to see that they are not molested."

HAWAII REFORM BILLS BEFORE LEGISLATURE

New Laws to Battle Vice Slated for Passage, Death For Attacks to Be Asked

By GILBERT PARKER
International News Service.

HONOLULU, T. H., Jan. 18. Hawaii set grimly to work today through its legislative representatives to erase the stigma of disgrace placed upon it as a result of a series of attacks on white women by half castes, the breakdown of a politically dominated police department and lax administration of laws.

Sweeping aside of old forms was the task Gov. Lawrence Judd had consigned to the special session of the Legislature convening today. The Governor's program contemplates a prompt enactment of laws radically altering Hawaii's legal processes to the end that speedy trials may be obtained in criminal proceedings.

POLICE SHAKEUP

Another bill provides for the creation of a public prosecutor in criminal cases, which step would automatically deprive the present county attorney of jurisdiction. The death penalty for criminal attack will be sought.

Reorganization measures are being supported by all civic groups, and it was regarded as a foregone conclusion that the Legislature will acquiesce in their acceptance.

The proposed death penalty for attackers of women was in doubt, however, owing to a division of legislative opinion as to possible difficulty in effecting convictions when the extreme penalty is attached.

CONVICT HUNTED

Kaikapu, a convicted murderer, was recaptured after he had attacked a white woman.

Acute nervousness and apprehension, however, of Honolulu's white population over outbreaks of violence following the criminal attack of five natives of Mrs. Thalia Massie, pretty young wife of a United States naval officer, has given way to a feeling of more confidence.

An augmented police department patrolled residential districts.

Meanwhile Mrs. Massie's mother, Mrs. Granville Fortescue, and Mrs. Massie's husband, Lieut. Thomas A. Massie, and two Naval enlisted men, E. J. Lord and Albert Jones, remained in custody on the warship Alton, pending trial for the murder of Joseph Kahahawai, one of the five natives accused of attacking Mrs. Massie.

Sleuths Investigate Death at Mayview

Deputy coroners and county detectives today were investigating the death of Willard Girty, 53, of 1404 Swissvale avenue, Wilkinsburg, mental patient at Mayview who was said to have died of injuries received when he was attacked by Frank Donahoe, also an inmate at the institution, according to the coroner's office.

William O'Neill, 44, of 752 Ellicott street, Buffalo, died in Presbyterian Hospital from internal trouble after refusing to permit physicians to perform an operation they said might have saved his life, according to a coroner's report.

'Shame of Honolulu' Charge in Editorial

The following editorial, entitled "The Shame of Honolulu," is from the Honolulu Times, printed following the attack by five native youths upon Mrs. Thomas H. Massie, wife of an American naval lieutenant. The editorial appeared prior to the killing of Joseph Kahahawai, one of the quintet tried for the attack.

"Word has gone out that women are not safe alone at night on the streets of our city; that if they venture forth they run the risk of being assaulted and foully attacked by gangs of lust-mad youths.

"And that word is true. Women are not safe. Attack and ravishment are crimes of frequent occurrence, and rarely indeed are those that commit them brought to justice. In such rare instances as they are apprehended, it is next to impossible to convict them. In the extremely rare instances that conviction is secured, the punishment is usually so mild as to constitute a condoning of an offense that would drive any other American community to frenzy.

"So appalling has the situation become that Army and Navy officers stationed here have sent out word to their brother officers on the mainland not to bring their wives if they are ordered to Hawaii, because the women would be liable to attack by the foul gangs that prowl through our streets at night.

Warning Issued

"Word has been sent out to naval officers not to bring their wives when they come to Hawaii next spring maneuvers!

"While the Ala Moana attack case was on trial in the Circuit Court, no fewer than four cases of attack, assault or attempted assault were reported to the police.

"We call this the paradise of the Pacific—but it is a paradise infested by the snake—a foul, slimy creature crawling through the streets and attacking the innocent and the defenseless.

"The shame of Honolulu!

"Nor can Honolulu's shame be wiped out, her good name redeemed until the men of Honolulu arise in their indignation and put an end to such disgraceful conditions.

"There are at large in Honolulu and unpunished the youths who, on the night of September 12, attacked a young Navy matron—a mere girl only 20 years of age, whom they caught as she was walking alone along a street in Waikiki—not only ravished her, but beat her up frightfully, breaking her jaw with brutal fists. Moreover, she had to undergo an operation to prevent having a child by one of the human reptiles.

Question Unanswered

"Five youths were arrested, charged with the crime and put on trial. The trial lasted nearly three weeks and ended in a hung jury.

"That leaves the question of the guilt or innocence of the five defendants unanswered. But there is no question but that some gang committed the crime.

"There are certain matters in connection with the trial that call for careful consideration.

"It may be stated on good authority that the jury was hung before it was sworn in.

"At least one of the jurymen, who on his voir dire swore that he had no opinion or bias that disqualified him to serve on the jury, is reported by a reputable and very well known citizen to have made the assertion, prior to his being called as a venireman, that he knew the whole case was a 'frame-up' and that the five defendants were absolutely innocent.

"This man is reported to be one who, from the first ballot to the last, voted for acquittal.

"Two other members of the jury were widely believed to have been resolved from the first to hang the jury if they could not get it to acquit.

"It is known, and is a matter of court record, that certain members of the police department, who are known to be disaffected and out to discredit John McIntosh, chief of the detective bureau, took an active part in the defense. Before the case ever went to trial they were busy spreading vile propaganda to try to discredit the complaining witness, the woman who was the victim of one of the most brutal crimes in the history of Honolulu.

"If they believed the defendants innocent, they were, as individuals, entitled to their opinions. But it was their duty to report their knowledge and beliefs to their superiors. Instead of that, some of them are said to have run to the defense lawyers, to have been in frequent and almost constant communication with them, to have worked actively to discredit their own chief.

There's another phase of the situation that demands consideration. In the Ala Moana case, as in so many others of similar nature, it was the complaining witness, as well as the defendants, who was placed on trial.

Shameful Attempts

"Shameful attempts were made to asperse, by insinuation and innuendo, the character of the young woman who was so visibly suffering from the effects of the frightful experience she had been through. This notwithstanding that there was no shadow of reason for it, that her reputation was beyond reproach, that she was the victim, not the perpetrator, of a foul crime.

"We are not attempting to express any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of the accused men. But this we can say, that if they are innocent their innocence needs no defense that relies upon trying to befoul the character of a good woman.

"Not only in court were such tactics used. Members of the police department are known to have been busy for weeks spreading dirty lies about the young woman. Who those men are Sheriff Gleason knows, or can easily find out if he has not as yet taken the trouble to inform himself. What is he going to do about them? Is he going to keep them on the police force?

"While it is true that the responsible minority, including the leading business men of the city, are thoroughly aroused and determined on drastic action to purge Honolulu of the disease that is eating at her vitals, the fact remains that there are many who are little if at all interested. Among them attack is looked upon as a mild peccadillo, assault as a minor misdemeanor, the ravishment of mere children as meriting only a few months in jail.

"When such a case is reported, the tendency appears to be to think the victim rather than her ravishers must be in the wrong; that the chances are she was a willing victim. Innocence rather than guilt is put on trial in their filthy minds. They believe the best of the ravishers and the worst of their victim.

"Honolulu's reputation is smirched, her virtue ravished by these gangs of human brutes that infest the streets. What is Honolulu going to do about it?

"The time for talk is past. What is demanded now is action, drastic and effective action that will rid the city of crooked and disloyal police as well as of sex-sodden brutes that prey on virtue and innocence."

FRANKLIN BANK QUIZ RECALLS NICOLA

Mortgage Dealer Also Will Appear Again; Summon 7 To Tell of His Activities

The investigation of George F. Taylor, special Deputy Secretary of Banking, into transactions in the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company was to continue today after a week-end lull used by banking department officials to co-relate information already gathered.

F. F. Nicola, realtor, has been notified to appear for further questioning at 4 p. m. today. Status of his loans in the Franklin Bank, amounting to about $37,500, was to be investigated further.

RECALL MORTGAGE MAN

Herman Friedman, second mortgage dealer, questioned two already, will be recalled Wednesday. To testify concerning his deals, seven persons have been subpenaed. They are Edward Hatchett, of the Pittsburgh branch, Moore, Leonard & Lynch; Samuel Saniel, real estate broker who has had dealings with Friedman; David Kellerman, who today charged he had to pay exorbitant bonuses to a mortgage dealer to secure certain loans from the bank; M. H. Parrish, contractor heavily involved in the bank; James A. West, Nathan Rosenberg and Sam Wisenthal.

Investigation of New York security deals of Friedman's was at an apparent standstill, with Taylor holding no power to subpena records out of the state and Friedman's broker there unfound.

PREPARES EVIDENCE

Four men have testified already—President C. A. Bardolph, whose testimony was immediately followed by his arrest on a charge of embezzling $250,000 from the bank; R. T. Armstrong, vice president; Friedman and Nicola.

Taylor's attorney, W. T. Corbett, is understood to be spending much of his time preparing evidence on violations of the banking laws found on the books of the institution.

Bank Inquiry Brings Farm Deals to Light

The Franklin bank was revealed today as having issued an execution against Bellwood Farms, Inc., of which C. A. Bardoph was treasurer. A bankruptcy petition was filed against the farm in Federal Court Saturday.

The farms are already involved in the bank to the extent of about $21,950, as of the date of the bank's closing. This is in a $16,500 mortgage held by the bank, $5,103 in notes signed and indorsed by Bardolph as treasurer and personally, and $350 in Bardolph's indorsements of other notes as treasurer of the farms.

A Sheriff's sale set for tomorrow will, it is understood, be held up by the bankruptcy petition.

Presenting claims aggregating $676, three petitioners filed involuntary bankruptcy proceedings before Judge F. P. Schoonmaker in Federal Court Saturday, Schoonmaker named R. H. Coleman receiver.

The petitioners are Oliver Allen, of the Sewickley Hardware Supply company, $174; A. J. Hegner and Frank Hegner, of the Hegner Hardware Company, $1[illegible]; Mrs. Henry R. Rea, of the Larmhill Dairy, $312.

Gibbons and Tokio General To Broadcast From Front

Universal Service

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—The first broadcast ever made from the actual scene of military hostilities will be heard throughout the United States Wednesday over a National Broadcasting Company network when Floyd Gibbons, Universal Service and International News Service staff correspondent, and Gen. Shigeru Honjo, Japanese commander in Manchuria, halt their activities near Mukden to speak through an NBC microphone.

The program will come from Mukden by short wave and will be rebroadcast over an NBC-WJZ network at 7:15 to 7:45 p. m. Pittsburgh time.

Confirmation of arrangements to put the Japanese field commander on the American air waves has just been received from Gibbons. His message read:

"Gen. Honjo, commander of Japanese forces in Manchuria, accepts the invitation of Universal Service and International News Service and the National Broadcasting Company to address the American radio audience at 7:15 p. m. E. S. T., from a microphone here in Mukden.

"This will be the first short wave broadcast ever made from the actual theater of hostilities, and the first time a general commanding military operations in the field will lay down the sword to pick up the mike.

"I will describe and introduce Honjo and the general will deliver a prepared speech in Japanese, after which I will read an English translation of his remarks. Then we will have a yarn about the boys in the trenches and out, and try to get the real low down on this whole Manchurian business."

extra session, even in the midst of a crisis which Mr. Hoover himself admits is as grave as a war.

HAVING PASSED the Republican administration's measure to finance the financiers, the Democratic House under the able leadership of Speaker Garner should now promptly proceed to approve a Democratic prosperity loan of several billion dollars to provide public work for the unemployed, to restore the purchasing power of the masses, and so give business to the shops, orders to the factories, sales of raw materials to the farms and the mines, and jobs to the employes of the shops and the factories and the mines and the farms.

The Republican administration has financed foreign nations, and has now relieved the bankers who have used American money to finance foreign enterprises.

Now let the Democratic House, under the able leadership of Speaker Garner, finance AMERICAN enterprise and AMERICAN employment, and restore prosperity to the AMERICAN PEOPLE.

2,000 TRAPPED ON HOUSETOPS BY FLOOD

Boats Speed to Aid After Levee Breaks Send Walls Of Water Over Wide Area

International News Service.

CHARLESTON, Miss., Jan. 18.—A fleet of motorboats was rushing today to Tippo Basin to rescue families trapped in their homes by flood waters.

Some 2,000 inhabitants of the region were marooned and in desperate straits by the sudden convergence of two giant walls of water dashing over the delta countryside from gaps in the Tallahatchee River levee system.

The waters submerged the rails of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley Railroad, cutting off the principal means of communication.

MORE BOATS ASKED

The only means of escape from the flood-ravaged Tippo Basin today was by boat, but there were not sufficient vessels to accommodate all the imperiled residents. An urgent appeal was sounded by the Red Cross and flood commission relief workers for more boats of all descriptions.

The motorboat fleet en route to the basin was expected to reach the stricken territory today.

Pressing all available boats in the vicinity into use, relief workers have already begun evacuating residents of the basin. Hundreds of refugees were streaming into Chaleston itself severed from outside communication except by telephone and telegraph.

FAMILIES ATOP HOUSES

Some 200 square miles of this delta region was under a blanket of water reaching a depth of 20 feet in some places. In many of the deluged towns families were living atop their houses, awaiting rescue boats.

Six major fissures in the Tallahatchee levee system belched watery avalanches. Hundreds of emergency workers fought ceaselessly to stem the onrush and prevent new breaks with sandbags.

The crests of hills today were dotted with camps of refugees who fled to the higher reaches before the flood fury.

RUM RUNNERS FIGHT; LIQUOR CONFISCATED

International News Service.

BOSTON, Jan. 18.—Liquor-running activities on the South Shore were marked today by a pistol battle between 20 smugglers and hijackers, the capture of two fast rum-running motor boats, the attempted $5,000 bribery of a Coast Guard boatswain's mate and the seizure of $220,000 worth of contraband.

Police seized $50,000 worth of liquor on the shore of Baileys Creek, Cohasset, after eight battling hijackers and a dozen rum runners had fled. At the same time coastguardsmen, running through the fog-shrouded waters of Boston Harbor, captured the speedboat Buddy and the boat Mary.

Later, the group of smugglers entered a Neponset shipyard where Boatswain's Mate A. W. Johnson was at a telephone calling for aid. The smugglers offered the Coast Guardsman $5,000 to allow them to remove the liquor from Mary and then to name his own price. GUARD MEXICAN TOMB JEWELS

MEXICO CITY, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—A princely fortune in gold and precious stones, a cache overlooked by Hernando Cortez and his Conquistadores 400 years ago and said to rival the treasure found buried with King Tutankh-amen in Egypt, lies today in the vaults of the Bank of Mexico.

It was found in the tomb of 10 ancient Mixtecan caciques, or feudal lords, in the fortressed city of Monte Alban, high above Oaxaca, by Mexican archaeologists. The announcement caused a great buzz of prediction that the long-sought gold of the "lost cities" may at last await excavators' picks and shovels.

The treasure already uncovered consists of more than 100 specimens of all kinds, ranging from heavy and finely-wrought gold crowns to pearls described as large as pigeons' eggs.

Alfonso Caso, chief government archaeologist in charge of the mission, said it was the richest and most important discovery made in the new world and that it will compare with or excel in value and importance the discovery of King Tut's tomb in Egypt several years ago.

Miss Myers, in private life the wife of Ralph Blum, an attorney, saved herself from being bound and gagged by pleading that she was soon to become a mother.

Blum was absent from the city. When Miss Myers and her maid, Mrs. Margaret Moore, returned from a theater they were confronted in the apartment by the two bandits, who ordered:

"Stick 'em up!"

The bandits forced Miss Myers and Mrs. Moore to stand with their faces to the wall while they took a pearl necklace, a 6-carat diamond ring and a pin set with emeralds, pearls and diamonds from Miss Myers.

On threat of death the bandits forced Miss Myers to reveal the location of a secret wall safe from which they took a ruby pin, a sunburst, a diamond ring, three strings of pearls and cash.

The bandits then cut telephone wires and fled.

Miss Myers was placed under the care of a physician at the home of her brother, Zion C. Myers. The physician said she had suffered from shock.

MEET IN FURORE AT MENTION OF PRESIDENT

Leader Bitterly Denounces Foes of Law; Senate Hearing on Beer Resumes

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—A declaration that "we have a convinced and sincere dry in the White House" brought delegates to the Anti-Saloon League's biennial meeting to their feet today with an outburst of cheering.

The Rev. John M. Phillips, of Hartford, Conn., made the statement, and added:

ASSAILS BINGHAM

He assailed Senator Bingham (Rep.), of Connecticut, the author of a bill to legalize beer and said:

"If anybody can make the wet side look ridiculous, Senator Bingham will. There is a great sentiment in Connecticut that all sons of the wild jackass do not come from west of the Mississippi."

He called the Crusaders an anti-prohibition organization, "The Knights of Malt and Bourbon," and called upon the league to redouble efforts to educate the youth of America against liquor use. He said:

"But we can hold the fort until the du Pont brothers and John J. Raskob get tired of throwing their money away."

He spoke after I. W. Pierce, of Montreal, had told the league "governmental control is a colossal failure" in Canada.

SEES PROFIT ON BEER

Meanwhile David Burnet, commissioner of internal revenue, today declined to predict whether legalization of beer would increase consumption over pre-prohibition days, but said beer taxes would show a "substantial increase" in revenues.

Called before the Senate Manufacturers Sub-Committee to testify on the Bingham 4 per cent beer measure, the revenue official said the government had no difficulty collecting beer taxes before prohibition and could collect them easily under Bingham's bill and at little cost.

Earlier Representative Dyer (Rep.), of Missouri, and Charles A. Boston, of New York, a former president of the American Bar Association, testified for 4 per cent beer. Boston also favored repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Robbers' Hideout Revealed In Philadelphia Tomb

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—In the ghostly atmosphere of a mossgrown, century-old tomb in old Franklin Cemetery, detectives found the hideout of a band of robbers yesterday.

Fifteen feet below the ground, in a black, dark chamber littered with bits of bones and hardware coffin fittings, they found part of the loot taken in several robberies.

At one end of the chamber were ashes of a fire, around which were placed three coffins on which police said the robbers sat while they divided their spoils.

The coffins were stripped of all fittings. No one was in the tomb.

SCORES PERILED IN TRAIN WRECK

Scores of passengers were imperiled early today when the locomotive of the Pittsburgh to Buffalo express train of the Pennsylvania road struck a boulder and ditched six miles north of Garvey's Ferry near Freeport and was derailed, burying its nose into the soft embankment. All escaped injury.

Damaging the pilot when it struck the boulder, which had rolled onto the tracks from a steep hillside, the locomotive traveling at reduced speed left the rails when it passed over a switch 1,200 feet away.

The baggage car, coaches and Pullman were shunted to the south bound tracks and proceeded to Buffalo after an hour and a half delay. Traffic on the northbound track will be tied up until noon according to G. M. Sixsmith, superintendent of the Conemaugh division.

The train was in charge of W. G. Richey, of Oil City, engineer; J. H. Fiddler, of Oil City, fireman, and W. G. McElhaney, of Pittsburgh, conductor.

LAUNCH FIGHT FOR RUTH JUDD

PHOENIX, Ariz., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Revealing the defense will concern itself chiefly with a plea of not guilty by reason of insanity, attorneys for 27-year-old Winnie Ruth Judd held their final conference today on the eve of the opening of her murder trial.

The slender, auburn-haired office worker is charged with the murder of her two former friends and roommates, Agnes Le Roi and Hedvig Samuelson, whose bodies were sent in trunks to Los Angeles.

Attorneys for Mrs. Judd, wife of Dr. W. C. Judd, Los Angeles physician, worked behind closed doors today. They have summoned three psychiatrists in addition to several witnesses from various points in Indiana and Illinois, where Mrs. Judd and her relatives formerly resided.

The attorneys said, however, they had not abandoned the plea of self-defense as a motive for the slayings and will offer testimony which will seek to show that Mrs. Judd killed the two women last October to save her own life.

The Budget Bureau's estimate was $9,625,880 less than the current appropriation.

This is the second supply bill reported this session which was below the budget estimates, the first deficiency bill, now in the Senate, carrying nearly $14,000,000 less than recommended.

Street Car Mail Boxes Urged to Aid Husbands

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Mail boxes on street cars, the Northern California Federation of Civic Organizations believes, would help solve the letter mailing problem for husbands as well as encourage early mailing of all letters.

The federation urged adoption of the plan in a resolution sent California congressmen, saying the postmaster here approved and a street car company had assured co-operation.

PIKEVILLE, Ky., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—John W. Langley, whose span of 69 years took him from a mountain cabin in the hills of Kentucky to Congress and then into a federal penitentiary, died at his home here yesterday after an illness of three days. Pneumonia was the cause.

Langley was elected Representative from the Tenth Kentucky District 10 times. When he finally stepped out of public life he was succeeded by his wife, Mrs. Katherine Langley.

He was convicted in 1925 of conspiracy to draw and illegally sell 1,400 cases of bonded liquor from a distillery at Lawrenceburg, Ky. WOMEN DRIVERS ENLIST TO AID WELFARE

Red Cross War-Time Motor Corps Reorganizes for Family Charity Service

In an effort to keep in better touch with more than 21,000 needy families being cared for by the Family Welfare Association, the aid of Pittsburgh women who served as volunteer drivers in the motor corps of the Pittsburgh Red Cross during the war has been enlisted, according to officials of the Welfare Fund which finances the family welfare group. The women will be under the direction of Miss Mary P. Burchfield, who directed the corps during the war.

Automobiles have been placed at the disposal of the family welfare group by automobile dealers of the Pittsburgh district, fund leaders said. Additional cars are needed, they said. The entire service is volunteer. Miss Burchfield said, and will add no expense to the welfare agencies.

The Red Cross Motor Corps flag will identify the automobiles which will be available in two shifts a day. The objective of the corps is six cars daily at the disposal of the family workers. With the inauguration of the service today, three cars are in duty.

The service is the result of criticism, officials declared, caused by delay in initial visits because of the tremendous volume of new cases. Less than 200 welfare workers are in the field.

Girl Ends Life After Attending Church

Returning from church where she had attended mass yesterday morning, Mary Paladino, 24, of 1215 Epiphany street, entered her home and shot herself, police said. She died a few minutes later. Her brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferrero, with whom she lived, were unable to ascribe a motive for the act, police said.

Seventh Ward Club Seeks New Members

A drive for members is being conducted by the newly organized Seventh Ward Community Club. It is expected the new organization will soon join the Allied Boards of Trade. Plans for the membership drive were discussed at a recent meeting in the Shakespeare School. Speakers included County Commissioner W. D. Mansfield, Harry Barstow, president of the Allied Boards of Trade, and Assistant Supt. of Police Ben R. Marshall.

How a Penna. R. R. Conductor Helped to Introduce this Great English Formula to American Rheumatic Sufferers*

Almost 25 years ago an English traveler was on the Penna. R. R. train going from New York to Cleveland.

As the conductor came for his ticket, this traveler noticed that the conductor was in great pain, and naturally he inquired if he could be of any assistance.

"It's my rheumatism," said the conductor. "Every bone in my body seems to ache and I get those terrible sharp twitches all the time. I haven't slept a wink for nights."

"Why, man!" cried the Englishman, "I've got just what you need—Eade's Pills. I would not be without them for the world. I used to suffer the same way that you do, and I never go anywhere any more without carrying a few packages with me. Here, take these and try them."

The name of this traveler and also of the conductor have not, unfortunately, been recorded—but this is known: That conductor got results from Eade's Pills which he was never able to get from anything else. Eade's brought him wondrous relief. He told brother railroad men about it, and year after year the demand for Eade's English Pills has grown as a result of this recommendation and praise.

Now the druggists of this vicinity make the following remarkable offer to all who seek the relief which this great English formula has brought to sufferers throughout the world.

JIM shifted his knee gingerly and for the hundredth time counted the window panes that look out on the campus. He sighed. They still totaled twelve.

From a far end of the infirmary he heard a telephone ring. He half-wished he had told his homefolks of his injury. But what's the use of worrying them he thought.

Then the door opened. "Here's a call for you, Mr. Carter," said brisk Nurse Allen. "I'll connect this portable telephone here," and handed him the instrument.

A call—who could it be? Jim was puzzled. Then he heard the voice: "What's the matter, Jimmy? Your letter's a bit gloomy!"

Jim wriggled happily, a broad grin on his face. "Hello, Mother—there's nothing wrong now!"

CAST JUGGLING :-: Producers Change Minds In Hero Selection :-: IN THE THEATERS :-: News and Notes About Stage and Screen

Chester Morris to Replace Holmes As Movie's Beach Comber

By HARRISON CARROLL

(Copyright, 1932, by Premier Syndicate.)

HOLLYWOOD, Jan. 18.

Chester Morris, it now develops, will play opposite Carole Lombard in "The Beach Comber," thus leaving Phillips Homes free to resume his interrupted vacation.

Several days ago, Phil was hastily summoned from New York. They were in such a hurry, he had to fly to make an added scene for the Lubitsch picture, "The Man I Killed." When he got out here, it turned out to be a single close-up, ironically enough, a smile.

Chester Morris

Then, when they announced him for "The Beach Comber," his dreams of further loafing faded away completely.

But on the second thought, the studio decided Chester Morris fits better into the Mildred Cram story, so everybody is happy. Chester has a good role and Phil can devote himself to leisure.

GOSSIP

Two local matinee goers sat next to Greta Garbo during a whole performance of "The Grand Hotel," and they didn't even know it. Greta, Gussie Berger to Broadway, slipped into the Belasco Theater and gave her absorbed attention to the stage presentation of her new picture. The whole cast of the film are spending much time at the Belasco and Director Edmund Goulding has seen the play many times . . . Richard Bennett is talking a long-term contract with Paramount which will put him into the big money . . . And out at M. G. M. it looks as if Victor Schertzinger will sign to direct Jack Gilbert in "Candle-Light." If the deal goes through, he will return to the scene of his first directional efforts. Back in the days when the old Triangle Studio occupied the site of M. G. M.'s modern cinema city, Vic was putting Will Rogers through his paces . . . Ian Keith has a picture of Edwin Booth in his dressing room. The other day a local paper reported it as Edwina Booth, and Ian is busy explaining . . . Another Hollywood landmark has disappeared.

Greta Garbo

Passing by what used to be Poverty Row, I noticed today that the famous "Mourner's Bench" in front of the drug store has been removed. Itinerant actors and film cowboys used to spend many an hour on this bench, waiting for calls from across the street . . . Lila Lee, ex-cameraman and a former studio makeup artist are running an awning and tent rental business in Papeete.

SOUTH SEAS AGAIN

Apparently, there's to be another epidemic of South Sea film stories. Radio is sending a company to Hawaii to make "The Bird of Paradise," and now Fox has bought A. C. Kennedy's story, "After the Rain." It is about the adventures of a young married couple who come up against the undermining influences of the tropics. Sally Eilers and Spencer Tracy will be featured.

Joe Penner Features Enright Show

Joe Penner, goofy comedian, who knows the trick of keeping audiences howling with laughter, opened a three-day engagement on the stage of the Enright Saturday. Lew Pollack, song writer, and three other vaudeville acts also are offered. The screen presents "A House Divided," a drama of domestic life laid against the background of a New England fishing town. Walter Huston, Helen Chandler and Kent Douglas head the cast.

Gangster Guns Sound On Harris Screen

Gangster guns bark again on the Harris screen in the film, "Bad Company." Helen Twelvetrees and Ricardo Cortez have the leading roles. The story revolves around a girl who marries a man she believes to be good and then learns that he is bad. Vaudeville is on the stage. It offers song, dance, comedy and novelty entertainment. The acts are Paxton; Holt and Torre, Pat Daley and company, McDonald and Paradise and Winnie and Dolly.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Thurston Hall, of Pittsburgh stock memory will be seen in the first part of "Mourning Becomes Electra," Eugene O'Neill's three-ply play that opens in the Nixon at 5:30 afternoon. Mr. Hall gets killed in the last act of the first play, so he can wash up and go out and mingle with the customers returning from their dinner to the final performances. Thurston has many friends in Pittsburgh. "M. B. E." will stick around for a couple weeks.

Small Timer says an army may travel on its stomach but a hobo does the same thing on his cheek.

Come Wednesday and "Electra" will be playing opposition to herself. The Grecian lady, as drawn by Euripides, will be given expression by the drama students of Tech in the Theater of the College of Fine Arts for six nights. The first performance, Wednesday night, will be especially for members of the Drama League of Pittsburgh as a preliminary to the observance of National Drama Week. Chester Wallace directed the production.

The Alvin is getting a demonstration of the real purport of "off-again, on-again, gone-again" with numerous cancellations, meaning that it has no show for next week. For two days or so, it was banking on "Experience Unnecessary" for the week of January 25, but Manager George Young has been served with another erasure. Hence, the b. o. will not be open today even though we told you on Saturday that it would be.

Small Timer says he is so absent-minded that he always remembers the things he wants to forget.

WALTER WINCHELL On Broadway

A Columnist's See'y Jots Down a Few Notes

Dear W. W.: Very few readers know why New York has been getting such unusual weather in winter . . . I heard this somewhere . . . That skippers of liners for the past 30 years have predicted that the Gulf Stream was slowly moving nearer to America away from the old country . . . And that in another 25 years or so—our January and February weather will be so warm that one need not go to Florida, etc., for there will be palm trees on Montauk Point, Long Island . . . In error you were credited with the simile: "New York is like strychnine: it perks you up until it lays you out." . . . It is Galsworthy's—You'd better say so before you are kidded about it . . . Mr. Brulatour phoned. Said they aren't bled-eventing or anything, and would you kindly announce the fact?

Edna Decker, of Dayton, is a happy bride and wants the world to know it. . . . She says she knows the no-good who started the wild rumors about her—and hopes you will help stifle the person. . . . The attorneys for Mary Lewis, the opera singer, would like to locate her ailing brother. . . . And said thanks for not worrying her in Yurrop. . . . Al Schwartz hopes all your children become columnists—and have to associate with editors! . . . Haw!

Trucks that carry explosives must not travel more than one block where there is an elevated railroad in N. Y. . . . Bill McCaffery is now romancing Wilma Cox. . . . There appears to be great mystery attached to the pair of love-birds that were sent anonymously to the John Schultzs (Lynn Cantor), of the RKO booking dep't. . . . John doesn't know if an admirer sent them to his wife and his frau wonders if an admirer of John's sent them to him! . . . Most annoying, don't you know—or do you?. . . . At any rate, the "love-birds" fight with each other incessantly—so what kind of love is that? . . . It was Gilbert Swan who, four years ago, wrote you were a fad and that your vogue would die soon. . . . Tee-hee.

During casting of the Maude Adams-Otis Skinner show it was incessantly pointed out to applicants that "only British actors need apply" . . . So things were evened when J. Brooks Atkinson, the Times critic, reported: "Some of the members of the company were almost adequate!"

Peggy Cleary's sister was wedded to C. Henry Gordon, the actor, on the Coast last week. . . . She thought you'd like to know. . . . Van Lear has his exploiter's job at the Palace again. . . . It's Margaret McCarthy who is being storked, not Dorothy, who was long ago. . . . Miss Edith I. Green, secretary to the pres. of the Coney Island Board of Trade, uses colored borders on her memo pads, expecially printed for her by the Coney Times, to suit her temperament, if you please. . . . That is, on different days of the week. Blue for rainy days, red for sunshine and so forth. . . . Ho, hum. . . . Dorothy Waller and her husband, who manages shows, and who were Reno-vated about a yr ago, are that way again and no foolin'! . . . In Chicago, Marc Lowhmann says, passes for theaters are known as "Go-Ins."

Here's an item: Three Democratic possibilities for the presidential race all have D as middle initials. . . Newton D. Baker, Franklin D. Roosevelt and Owen D. Young . . . Novarro phoned before entraining . . . Said the next time he can arrange it he wants you to meet GG and really understand her . . . He thinks you dislike her, so I assured him you didn't and that you merely wanted to prove she was here when the Coast defenders said she wasn't. —Your Girl Friday.

Dorothy Jordan Signs M-G-M Contract

Dorothy Jordan has signed an extended-term Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer contract, according to announcement from the coast. Miss Jordan has been seen in a large number of this company's films during the past three years.

Symphony Orchestra Here Tonight

The Chicago Symphony Orchestra, Frederick Stock conductor, will give a concert in Syria Mosque tonight. The program follows:

Passacaglia and Fugue, C Minor . . . . . Bach
(Transcribed for modern orchestra by Mr. Stock).
Symphony No. 7, A Major, Opus 92 . . . . . Beethoven
"La Mer" (The Sea) . . . . . Debussy
From Dawn to Noon at Sea
Gambols of the Waves
Dialogue between the Wind and the Sea.
Suite from the Ballet "The Fire Bird" . . . . . Strawinsky
The Fire Bird and Her Dance
Dance of the Princesses
Infernal Dance of the Kastchei

Finale.

Naro Lockford and Film On Sheridan Bill

Naro Lockford tops the current vaudeville in the Sheridan Square, appearing in an act, "Dance Humoresque." Jack Major, singer, also has a prominent spot on the bill. Other acts include Morgan and Stone, and the Fiochi Sisters. The screen has "Are These Our Children," featuring the talented young actor, Eric Linden. This film was well received by critics on its recent downtown showing.

"Jekyll And Hyde" Stays On Warner Screen

"Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," talk screen version of Robert L. Stevenson's story, is now on a second week in the Warner. It will close its engagement Friday night. Frederic March is starred and Miriam Hopkins and Rose Hobart are prominent in the supporting cast.

How to Reduce Colds and Their Costs This Winter

One of Family's Biggest Problems Met With Vick "Control-of-Colds" Plan

Actual Test of the Plan Is Offered by Pittsburgh Druggists On a Trial Guarantee.

To most families this winter, the high costs of colds are an extra burden. Loss of time, health and money are involved. To reduce the drain of this burdensome family "Colds-Tax" is the purpose of the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds" — to lessen their number, severity and duration.

Plan Follows New Discovery

The Vick Plan is made possible with Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. Based on a new idea for "preventing" colds, this new Vick discovery is companion to Vicks VapoRub, the modern way of "treating" colds. Each aids and supplements the other for better "Control-of-Colds."

Here, briefly, is the Vick Plan:

1—Before a Cold Starts

Watch yourself whenever you have been exposed to anything that you know is apt to give you a cold, such as——

Contact with others having fresh colds—crowds, stuffy, ill-ventilated rooms, public places—a night on a Pullman or a dusty automobile ride—sudden changes in temperature—inhaling smoke, dust, gases—excesses in living, such as over-eating, smoking or drinking, which reduce body resistance — after a hard day when you are over tired.

Then — if you feel that stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages, Nature's usual signal that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once—just a few drops up each nostril. Repeat every hour or so if needed. This will prevent many colds by stopping them before they get beyond the nose and throat — where most colds start.

2—After a Cold Starts

At night, massage the throat and chest well with Vicks VapoRub (now available in white "stainless" form, if you prefer). Spread on thick and cover with warm flannel. Leave the bedclothing loose around the neck so that the medicated vapors arising can be inhaled all night long.

If the air-passages are badly clogged with mucus, melt some VapoRub in a bowl of hot water and inhale the steaming vapors for several minutes. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vick Cough Drop—actually medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

During the day—any time, any place—use Vicks Nose Drops every few hours as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment and without the risks of too much internal "dosing," which so often upsets digestion — especially of children.

Offer By Local Druggists

Your druggist is offering Vicks Nose Drops and Vicks VapoRub on the following trial guarantee: Use these preparations together as directed in the Vick Plan for better "Control-of-Colds." Unless you are delighted with results, your money will be refunded.

Why you should be interested in your Blood Count

(Right) Weak red-blood-cells—only 60 per cent of normal strength. Such a condition is often responsible for body weakness, paleness, sallow complexion, pimples and boils.

Don't let them count you out!

...sparkling vitality and a clear skin

reflect rich, red blood cells

"IT is good of you to say those nice things," she replied.

Some people just "bubble over" with vitality . . . they inspire compliments.

Nature has its own way of making a strong body and a clear skin . . . by its use of the red-blood-cells.

So often the pressure of work and worry or some sickness "burn up" these precious red-blood-cells—then the hemoglobin percentage begins to fall and we wonder "what is the matter."

If this is your trouble, why not take steps to overcome it? Remember, ing that a "tired feeling" may be a warning . . . so are pimples, boils and paleness.

A general run-down condition means a lack of normal resistance to infection and disease. A lagging appetite often leads to underweight and ill health in various manifestations.

For generations S.S.S. as a tonic has been helping people gain New Strength, better health and happiness. Its successful record of over 100 years in restoring strength and vitality to the blood surely warrants you, giving it a good trial.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

Just because the social season for the winter in Pittsburgh is over doesn't mean social life is dull here.

The week offers many interesting things. First of all, tonight there's the Pittsburgh opening of "Mourning Becomes Electra" at the Nixon Theater which all the faithful first nighters of the social set will attend.

For those who like both drama and music, there'll be conflict, for the Chicago Symphony Orchestra will give a concert tonight in Syria Mosque.

As a grande finale of the week there's the wedding Saturday of Helen Pendleton and Frank Boyd McKown in the Church of the Ascension.

And, at A & P you redeem every cent of your dollar because you get the greatest quantity of the highest quality food obtainable for it.

Police Ordered to Shoot to Kill in Hunt for Bandits After Weekend Robberies

A county-wide search was being made today by state and county officers with orders to "shoot and kill" for bandits whose activities were climaxed over the week-end when two victims were beaten.

Positive identification of one of the automobiles used by the bandits was given today by Eddie Peyton, roadhouse proprietor, who told county detectives that after he was robbed of almost $1,000 near his establishment, he fired several bullets into the robbers' car. He obtained its license number.

TWO MEN BEATEN

William T. Lynch, of 930 Ridge avenue, and Paul Bogovich, of Turtle Creek, were beaten by bandits who held them up, Lynch when his automobile was forced to the side of the road in Turtle Creek, and Bogovitch as he parked his machine in the Monroeville road.

Just before beating Lynch, four bandits who answered descriptions given by Lynch and Bogovitch robbed Mrs. Mary Shane of $300 as she sat in an automobile at Jones Corners, Wilkins Township.

Peyton said he was driving home with his sister, Marge, his brother, Arthur, and Mary Prendergast and Tom Nee, of Ingram. The bandits' car, containing three men, drew abreast of his machine near the Thornburg Bridge.

FORCED TO HALT

Two of the bandits, with drawn revolvers, jumped on Payton's running board and forced him to stop. They fled with the keys to his car and the money, escaping after Peyton fired five shots. Peyton said he hit the fleeing machine.

John Davis, proprietor of a service station, Hawkins avenue, North Braddock, was held up and robbed of $25. R. J. Warf, Swissvale-Braddock trolley car motorman, lost $21 when two bandits boarded his car at Thirteenth street and Talbot avenue, Braddock.

Sneak thieves who entered the home of J. S. Dansyski, 282 Lacock street, escaped with $258 in cash, according to a report today to North Side police.

Mrs. M. Higgins, of 5839 Penn avenue, complained to East End police that a diamond ring valued at $300 was taken from her home during her absence.

ENGLISH DANCE FAVORED HERE

Masculinity and simplicity best describe the new mode in ballroom dancing, the English fox trot, according to Lucille Stoddart, New York dance authority, in Pittsburgh to instruct members of the Pittsburgh Society for Improvement of Dancing.

The society, in connection with the Western Pennsylvania Dancing Masters of America, held a mid-winter convention at Webster Hall Hotel yesterday.

The English style of dancing is becoming almost as popular in America as it is in England, Miss Stoddart explained. She said:

"In England everyone dances the same way. When a woman dances with a man she knows just what he will do next. It is very different from the jazz style of dancing so popular here."

The convention program included instruction by Miss Stoddart and Jack Manning, also of New York; a business meeting and dinner.

Chatham Village's Beauty Of Design, Practicality Of Venture Lauded

By PENELOPE REDD

Unkempt acres of tangled brushwood on a Pittsburgh hilltop have been transformed into Chatham Village, a place of pleasant gardens and peaceful homes.

Chatham Village has come into being by reason of the initiative of the Buhl Foundation in investing capital in a housing experiment and also through the ability of the architects and engineers to create order from topographical chaos.

Miss Redd

The site, located on Virginia avenue and Olympia Park, Mt. Washington, contains 40 acres. One hundred and twenty-five houses have been erected on 10 of these acres.

The group, now nearing structural completion, is not the work of a djin with instantaneous powers. First of all, Stein and Wright, of New York City, housing planners, prepared a site plan for the location of the groups of houses and of streets and walks.

Then Ingham and Boyd, local architects, took the abstract site plan and developed a concrete design for the entire group.

As Ingham and Boyd's design proceeded, the necessary avenues of traffic, the underground service lines and drainage were constructed under the direction of C. L. Woolridge, engineer.

Ralph Griswold, landscape architect, was busy at the same time devising appropriate planting and protecting trees and shrubs that could survive uprooting.

Inasmuch as Pittsburgh is a "brick" city, this predominating material was chosen. Variety was given to the material by selecting two rose-colored types, one of which produces vivacity of surface because of its distinctive "kiln marks."

"Georgian" naturally followed as the style of achitecture that might utilize brick and yet be constructed economically without losing character.

Those who mistake eccentricity of design for "individuality" or prefer architectural hybrids frequently mis-named "quaint," will be disappointed in the orderly dignity of Chatham Village.

Those who appreciate the frank style of the Georgian, so closely allied with early American traditions, will feel as if at home after a long and wearisome journey.

The satisfactory solution of many annoying problems, such as the occurrence of double doorways, and the planning of the window openings to add animation to every separate facade, must have required long study.

The houses have five, six and seven rooms, arranged to give light and air to all. Templates to

Pastor Schmidt

He and Good slammed the bedroom door and held it tight. The burglar stepped out to the porch roof from a window, but saw below members of the church and Mr. Schmidt, called from church.

JOBLESS PARTY CANDIDATE HITS RICH

Scores Legislators, Finds No Difference Between Old Parties on Current Issues

Father James R. Cox, presidential candidate of the new Jobless party, struck out at the public utilities today by declaring that taxes would be lower if the utilities were not tax-exempt. He added:

"The utilities, free from taxes, are better able to pay than the poor man, but they are exonerated."

Father Cox's declarations were made in a speech before the Pittsburgh Accident and Health Insurance Managers' Association at the Mayfair Hotel.

SCORES LEGISLATORS

He described Pennsylvania's Legislature as "a body of good-for-nothings" and as for the difference between the Republican and the Democratic parties he asked:

"What choice would there be between Mellon and Raskob?"

Father Cox, leader of an army of jobless men to Washington recently, and crusader for unemployed, announced his candidacy following a mass meeting of 55,000 in Pitt Stadium Saturday afternoon. He said his only interest in politics was to assure the fulfillment of the needs of the people. In a statement issued late yesterday he said:

"If the party chooses me, I'll accept and run for President. I'm not interested in any political office. I am interested in the people and their needs. I want to see these resolutions of the unemployed carried out, and they will be carried out.

CONFIDENCE LOST

"Our confidence in administrations of all kinds along present political lines is gone. To prove that we're not supporting any party or candidate other than our own, we are going to hold our convention in St. Louis on Labor Day and nominate candidates for President and Vice President.

"Our platform is our resolution, asking immediate relief, jobs and a $5,000,000,000 program of public works to provide jobs, with increased income and inheritance taxes on the rich to provide funds for the relief of the unemployed and farmers. These resolutions have been indorsed by the jobless and by the more than 55,000 at the Stadium."

Although final count of a collection taken up at the meeting Saturday to defray expenses of Father Cox's march to Washington has not been made, it was estimated the final total would be about $5,000.

'SWEET VOICE' CONTEST ON

"I like her voice" is the expression often heard when a feminine announcer takes her "turn" at the microphone. Perhaps it has never occurred to the average radio listener that this particular voice had been selected for broadcasting for its sweet, golden, friendly quality.

That's the kind of a girl and a voice that the Sun-Telegraph is searching for—the "girl with the sweetest voice." When she is found she is going to get an opportunity to make a career for herself—because she will be fitted into a Sun-Telegraph special daily program on station WCAE.

Bear in mind, that this is a speaking voice that is being sought—not necessarily a singing voice.

If you think you are the girl or if you know the girl who will fill the bill, fill in and mail the coupon published on this page.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BAGDAD, Jan. 18.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

Finally found a telegraph. Persia was a hot sketch. You Bible students, stockmen and hunters better note this. Flew low all morning between Euphrates and Tigris. It's all level prairie and uncultivated. Most animals I ever saw were there. Thousands of cattle, donkeys, camels, water buffaloes, deer, wild boar. Now over Jerusalem and Holy Land and Bagdad. Yours, WILL.

NEARING CALLS AUTOS TOYS

Scott Nearing, exponent of Communism, believes that:

"America in the past 10 years has taken its birthright—raw materials—and thrown it away on automobiles which are toys and clutter our streets, all because of wasteful misplanning."

Dr. Nearing made this latest of his tirades on capitalistic economy while in Pittsburgh to debate Communism versus capitalistic "plans" with Dr. Roswell H. Johnson, of the University of Pittsburgh.

Dr. Nearing argues that the individual should receive only enough income to purchase clothes and food and that the bulk of income should be retained by the community.

Russia, Japan Just One Treaty Away From War

—By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER—

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Our Oriental help informs us that Russia and Japan are just one peace treaty short of a war.

The boys expect to make up the shortage at Geneva this week.

That will keep China busy until something important comes along.

Of course, we will have something to do with it. Our international bankers will bootleg some pretty bonds for the children to teethe on.

We always manage to get in on the ground floor to dedicate the corperstone just before the building collapses.

Some day we will learn to lay off foreign slickers and realize that it is as dangerous as whipping a burro on the Bright Angel trail.

There's one thing we would like to know about those foreign debts.

Were we investing or betting?

Saint-Gaudens to Teach Army Camouflage Art

Homer Saint-Gaudens, director of fine arts at Carnegie Museum, today was ordered to report at Fort Humphreys, Va., on February 22, to instruct regular army officers there in camouflage practice and theory.

He is assigned to the Fort Humphrey Engineering School, at which regular army engineer officers are given instruction, which will fit them for teaching reserve corps and enlisted men.

While at the fort, Saint-Gaudens also will conduct camouflage experiments with artillery and air force officers, the artillery endeavoring to camouflage their batteries so they cannot be located by planes and aerial cameras.

TYPICAL GEORGIAN GROUP IN CHATHAM VILLAGE . . . 125 HOUSES ON A 10-ACRE PLOT

BUHL VILLAGE BEAUTY, DESIGN LAUDED

Unkempt Hill Transformed Into Orderly Dignity; 125 Houses Now Ready

represent furniture were constantly used while the architects designed the rooms, to insure space for proper placing of lares and penates.

The houses are arranged in 25 groups, varying from two to eight houses in a group. Every separate group was considered from the viewpoint of securing variety in the unit. The uneven and sloping land was one of the primary factors in producing this effect. By building the units that composed every group on varying levels, the roof gables and hips were constantly changed, thus avoiding a continuous and monotonous roof line without added cost.

Then the groups were arranged in relation to each other to give balance to the design. The architects, however, were guided by the plan to maintain units even although there was variety in the component groups.

As a result, one discovers delightful groupings unexpectedly in moving about Chatham Village. Perhaps, this pleasure is best expressed by saying it makes a "perfect composition" in the painter's sense. There is ever another vista to bid one linger.

Chatham Village needs a patina of time and association to impress the general public with its merit as architectural design. The old colonists at Economy, Pa., were empirical builders but building what they needed in sincerity, their houses now seem immeasurably better than the commercial jobs of their period.

Chatham Village has this same basic integrity of purpose. Furthermore, the advantage of excellent and thoughtful design promises a housing experiment which should be of significance to the city and the nation.

TROTZKY FACING LONGER EXILE

ISTANBUL, Turkey, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Leon Trotzky, former Soviet leader, who is in exile here, was silent today regarding reports from Berlin that the political bureau of the Communist party at Moscow had decided to demand a two-year extension of his banishment.

The former colleague of Lenin kept to his villa as usual. Last summer, in an interview with the Associated Press correspondent, he hinted he expected his banishment to be continued, saying he planned to continue his writing, "if my political dog days go on."

On the other hand he has a good conduct record here which might lead him to expect reinstatement in the graces of Joseph Stalin. He has never left his villa except to go fishing in the summer and occasionally to go hunting in the fall or winter.

All Praise to God the Eternal (Russian anthem) .... Arr. Gaul

The Choral Society of the Young Men and Women's Hebrew Association gave its first concert of the season in the "Y" auditorium with Harvery B Gaul directing. It was the liveliest concert the organization ever sang, what with the omission of encores and the including of some very happy folk music.

Mr. Lissfelt

Over and over I must beg this chorus to continue the study and singing of Hebrew folk song. No others in the community sense its meaning and no others can abandon their voices to its peculiar idiom. There is a jollity as well as a plaintive feeling in this music which becomes very insinuating the more one hears it. Keep it alive!

Technical improvement in the chorus was noticeable in the Czech and Russian folk songs, and a new lyric quality in Harvey Gaul's cantata "The Singers" sung for the first time. Solo singers were chosen from the chorus as always, Dorothy Scott, Anne Zimet, Bess English Himmelblau, Madeline Kahn Lewis, Jeannette Klasky, Samuel Wolf and Ma Franklin.

Henry Harris contributed two groups for piano solo, an austere classic group and a variety of the most romantic works of Chopin. The sombre melody of the Grahms Intermezzo was the compelling moment of the classics, relieved by the grim humor of Beethoven's "Rage Over the Lost Farthing." Of the Chopin, the seldom heard "Ecossaises" was a sparkling miniature, the "Revolutionary Etude" might have been contemporary history, and the "Waltz" a bit of charming abandon.

As encores came Dubussy's "Danseuses de Dalphes" and a finely reistrained reading of Liszt's arrangement of the "Isolde's Liebestod." As always in Harris' playing one senses the slumbering fire which he controls more and more and which flames forth in his thoughtfully planned climaxes.

Quartet Op. 18 No. 3. Beethoven

The Yost String Quartet presented a classic program in Schenley ballroom yesterday afternoon, a most serious sort of music which can find more faults in production than all the modern music ever written.

There was havoc to begin with, and throughout the concert bad intonation, rough ensemble and decided lack of finesse in modeling phrases were rampant.

Viola Bergerson, a Pittsburgh contralto with an imposing voice, sang three old English songs, as lovely music as has been presented at these concerts. Voice and string quartet are a most happy combination, and we should like to recommend many repetitions of such music.

3 HELD IN SHACK FIRE DEATH

The body of a man believed to have been killed in an incendiary fire was found today in the ruins of a shack in which he and four others lived along the Youghiogheny River in Port Vue.

Three of the others were under arrest, but the fourth was reported to have disappeared.

The victim was unofficially identified as Harry Krucheck, 55, former Jeannette miner, whose family is in Poland.

Police Chief Andrew Macko said he learned that the men had moonshine, and that before the fire the one who has disappeared, said to be Michael Dolgush, argued with Krucheck and threatened to start a fire under his bunk.

The three under arrest in Port Vue are Albert Markefo, 50, John Hudak, 40, and Louis Arvay, 48.

Bobbed Hair Creator Dies in California

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 18.—(AP)—William Hepner, 77, credited with creating the mode of bobbed hair for women, is dead after a protracted illness at his home in Santa Monica Canyon. He had been internationally known for half a century as a wig and hair expert.

Bobbed hair was first worn by Irene Castle quite without the idea of starting a new fashion, Hepner said. Miss Castle was stricken with typhoid fever, and her hair began falling out. She declined to wear a wig, and Hepner cut her hair to shoulder length. Her appearance in bobbed tresses was credited with starting a mode which swept the nation.

CHILDREN FEAR DOPE-DRUGGED COUGH SYRUPS

"I was awakened. There was Irma—coughing, crying. It frightened me—that cough. I had a bottle of Smith Brothers'. It's candy—I told her. That stopped the tears. Immediately her cough was soothed. In the morning she was all well again! Mrs. F. Commanday, Yonkers, New York.

MANY bitter cough syrups—which children hate so—contain DOPE (Chloroform, Ether, Morphine, Opium.) No question about it—it says so on the label. Look at that label—and then decide whether you want to force your child to take such medicine.

Smith Brothers Cough Syrup contains no opiates, no narcotics, no dope. Nothing, absolutely nothing, that can upset a child's stomach. This syrup doesn't have to rely on dope. Its new discovery, "Triple-Action," does the work. It (1) clears air passages, (2) loosens phlegm, (3) stops coughs fast. Children actually like the taste. Only 35c.

ARNOLD BLAZE ROUTS 26

Twenty-six persons, including 14 children, were forced to flee their homes in night attire by fire which destroyed two houses and threatened a third in Arnold early today.

An invalid woman, a paralytic, was carried to safety by her husband and Arnold firemen.

A German police dog which leaped into the smoke-filled bedroom of its master, to sound an alarm, perished in the flames.

The damage was estimated at $5,000 by Fire Chief Frank Kratz, of Arnold. An overheated coal stove was blamed.

Originating in the home of Mrs. Frances Mroczkowski, at 1316 Third avenue, the fire swept to the adjoining home of John Mazurowski, at 1318 Third avenue. The home of Michael Deao, at 1314 Third avenue, was watersoaked.

The invalid, Mrs. Margaret Patrick, 50, asleep on the first floor of 1318 Third avenue, was carried to safety by her husband, Paul.

Growing Up Is Confusing To Most Youngsters

Ever remember those crazy-lazy-dazy days when you were 16? Or perhaps you're in them now—yes?

No joke, are they?

People say it's so "wonderful to be young," but once upon a time that statement gave you a pain in the neck, and it's giving Betty a pain now.

Betty is nice and all that—wire-haired sleep, her mind sorted out—lots all fussed up over the cutest little boy. Doesn't know where she is and is beginning to suspect that she's crazy.

Remember when you felt like that?

"Dear Sally:

"I guess you'll think when you read this letter that maybe I'm crazy, and sometimes I wonder myself. I'm not.

"You see, I am just different somehow. I seem to be so different from the rest of the kids. Everything seems to bother me. I feel sad at three things I get excited so easily, and part of the time I am scared. I don't know what to do with myself.

"One minute I feel like a million dollars, peppied up and everything in the world seems just grand, and then next minute everything is so muddled I don't know where I am. Then I get blue.

"Honestly, sometimes I wish I were dead. I just don't seem to know what it's all about at all, and I think and think until I am going around in circles. I have tried to tell my mother about it but somehow I can't. When I start to talk about it it all seems so silly and I think maybe she would laugh at me or think I was going crazy, so here I am asking you. Somehow you are so far away and I can tell you without actually having to see you, so it seems easier.

IS DESPERATE

"Can you help me? Can you tell me why I am like this? Am I going crazy? The other kids seem to go along and take things sort of matter-of-course. They don't seem to get all muddled and frantic like I do, so I think I must be different. Maybe there is something the matter with me. Do you think so?

"I can't seem to keep my mind on the things I try to, and then things I know it is wonderful to dream about. I can't explain it. But I am just desperate. What is wrong with me anyway?

What's wrong with you? Not a thing in the world, honey. You're just growing up, that's all.

Ever watch a young colt? Everything seems out of proportion. One day they're all legs. Next day they're all neck. One moment they're standing around in dizzy circles. Next they're huddled with a melancholy lump looking and feeling half alive.

HUMANS SAME WAY

Well, humans are like that, too. Youth's growing pains are unbearable. Not just their bodies, but their spirits and minds. One minute you feel one way and acting and the next you're acting like a screwball. I know, honey. I've been through it too. And if you could look into the hearts of the grandmothers around you, you'd find that they are feeling exactly the same way.

But don't worry. Pretty soon things will begin to smooth out just by themselves. Life will gather itself together in one piece. You'll wonder why you were so upset by every little thing. You'll begin to feel sure of yourself, begin to do things well yourself. You'll be grown-up.

But let me whisper a secret. You'll never be entirely grown up. No one ever is. For the wisest of us and the oldest of us still feel half-baked inside. Why do grown-ups do such goofy things? That's why dear. So don't be too discouraged with Betty and Life. We're all in the same boat. And you'll always have to [illegible] a little [illegible] the rest of us do.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Flat Feet Can Be Cured by Persistent Exercises

Do you know that the common complaint called "flat foot" is regarded as sufficient reason for keeping the applicant from the United States Military Academy at West Point? Many young men otherwise in perfect health have been unable to enter because of this defect. During the World War thousands of young men anxious to serve their country and eager to reach the front line were kept at home for inactive duty because they had flat feet.

Dr. Copeland

A flat foot is one made defective by the weakening or actual breaking of the arches of the foot. There are two arches. One runs from the heel to the toe and the other runs across the base of the toes. These arches are supported by muscles. When the development of these muscles is poor they relax and the arches are not held up as they should be.

Pain is caused by lack of proper support of a foot arch. This pain is severe. It is not always confined to the foot but may be felt up the back of the leg.

Most cases of flat feet can be prevented if the tendency is recognized at an early age. The weakness usually exists in childhood. On this account you should have your children's feet examined to see whether they have good arches. If they show any sign of weakness exercise and proper shoes will overcome the defect.

It is simple to determine a normal arch. Stand erect with feet firmly placed on the ground. The feet should be parallel with the heels and large toes touching. When the arches are normal there should be a concave space between the feet. This space varies in size depending upon the height of the arch.

It should be possible to place a small round object as the end of a pencil under the arch without touching the foot. This cannot be done with a flat foot.

Proper shoes are essential for everyone and particularly for persons with flat feet. Tight shoes cause the muscles of the foot to become weak. The ideal shoe is broad in the toe with ample room for the toes. The shoe should fit in the instep. The heel should be broad and low. The shoe should have a straight inner border and be of ample length. Shoes that are improperly fitted are detrimental to health.

To overcome flat feet it is necessary to improve the circulation and tone of the feet. The muscles must be strengthened and the weak arch supported. I want to impress my readers with the fact that arch supporters alone cannot cure this condition. It is true that they support the weak arch, but they do not strengthen the muscles or improve the circulation of the foot. This can only be accomplished by proper exercises.

Many exercises are advised. They are all beneficial. If you have flat feet I suggest the following exercises: In the first one, walk with the toes turned in, on a seam in the rug or a crack in the floor. As you walk across the room place the weight on the outer borders of the feet. Then walk across the floor on your heels and return walking on the outer borders of the feet.

Another exercise is to lie on your back with your feet in the air. Then turn the ankle upward and bend the toes toward the knee and back again.

Fay King Reflects on Successful Man Who Goes 'High Hat,' Quits Old Crowd

I OFTEN THINK OF OUR NEIGHBORS THERE THEY WERE ALL SO NICE!
HE'S GONE "HIGH-HAT"— HASN'T GOT ANY TIME FOR THE OLD CROWD NOW!
THAT'S JUST IT! "NO TIME!" - NOT "HIGH-HAT!"
I WORKED THERE TWO YEARS THEY WERE A DANDY BUNCH!
FAY KING

By FAY KING

If a man suddenly succeeds and wishing to make it solid success finds he cannot waste time and energy running around with the old crowd, he is heartily condemned for going "high hat!"

Would they be as loud in regretting the loss of his company if his progress had been as far downward as it is upward?

It is not only the successful who find that new interests sever old ties.

We go from one place of employment to another and do not keep in touch with former fellow workers we were fond of.

But this is never considered going "high hat!"

The Doctor Announces That the Baby Is Out of Danger

I went through a white-hot second or two while Katherine was delivering her ultimatum in which it seemed to me that I must shriek out at her all the pent-up venom distilled by my unreasoning jealousy of her care of my baby. Then mercifully sanity came to me and I realized not only how perfectly justified Katherine was in her dictum.

Forgive me," I pleaded. Of course I shall do whatever you direct." But stubbornly I must know what the doctor says before I go to sleep."

I'm a stern nurse," Katherine said with a smile touching the corners of her mouth, "but I'm not a medieval wielder of the thumbscrew and the rack. If you left here before the doctor delivered his verdict you'd be awake for hours and likely necessitate calling in another nurse. No, sit down there and possess your soul in what patience you can until the doctor arrives. There's nothing to do for the baby now save to let her rest. Lillian will run errands for me. I'll send Katie to bed. She can get in a couple of hours' sleep before she has to get breakfast."

She's been up all night, hasn't she?" I asked, solicitude for my little maid pushing its way to the front of my brain.

Yes," Katherine answered, with a sardonic note in her voice, "but I hope you are not going to suggest that I keep her in bed today."

Perhaps not all day," I answered, "but if I can get hold of Mrs. Ticer early enough she'll come over and get breakfast and see to the clearing up and Katie can sleep till noon."

That's all right with me," Katherine replied promptly, "as long as you do not attend to any of the details of getting Mrs. Ticer here."

I'll attend to that," Lillian promised. "You can depend on me, Madge. I'll get hold of Mrs. Ticer as soon as she's awake. Ah!" she lifted her head as the sound of a racing motor car came into the yard. "I imagine the doctor is here."

Will you get him up here as quickly and quietly as possible?" Katherine asked. "I don't want anybody else wakened if I can help it."

Trust me!" Lillian said, and she was gone.

We were fortunate in getting hold of him, I know, for he is seldom at home. He holds high rank as a diagnostician in New York City and is only available to residents of the east end of the island during the weeks he spends in his summer home.

Lillian stepped back a pace and her arm went around me with firm tenderness while her facile fingers undid my clenched hands and held them firmly. As always, the mere touch of her hand heartened me and I waited in silence while Dr. Quigley made a quick yet thorough examination of the baby.

When he turned and faced Katherine, I felt as if I dared not breathe until I heard his verdict. An eternity seemed to unroll itself before me while he questioned Katherine concerning the symptoms of illness which Faith had shown before the convulsion. When she had finished her recital he turned again to the baby, now wailing fretfully at having been disturbed and touched the soft skin of her face appraisingly.

I don't find any condition here that would warrant the expectation of another seizure," he said at last, "but she has a temperature, and until that is normal, you must watch her carefully. Keep her quiet, starve her practically for 24 hours, only the minimum of nourishment—let her have plenty of water of the right temperature and give her one of these every two hours."

He held out some tiny tablets to Katherine.

They are practically tasteless," he said, "thoroughly dissolved in water you will have no difficulty in getting them down. I will look in again before noon, and, of course, telephone me at once if you think there is any need for me."

He shot a swift searching glance at Lillian and me, then spoke authoritatively.

Mrs. Graham, you are in no condition to be in the room. No nurse can do justice to the care of a child-patient with a nervous mother on her hands. Besides you are very likely to have a complete nervous collapse if you stay here.

Mrs. Underwood, will you please take her to her room and put her to bed?"

For the Co-Hostess

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please give me your views on what is the most suitable costume to wear at this time of year when one is to pour tea following a "musicale" in a private home? Is a rich brown velvet dress with hat to match in good form? L.

The costume that you describe will be in excellent taste for you to wear when you are co-hostess at the tea.

Who Should Write First?

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

My friend and I have had quite a dispute and we thought you could help us. This situation is as follows: The girl is going away very soon and the boy is staying at home. Whose place is it to write first? Is it correct for the girl to start the conversation?

2. Would it be correct for the girl to start the conversation if both the boy and girl were going away for the winter? R.

1. You mean "to start the correspondence," don't you? The boy asks the girl if she will give him the privilege of writing to her, and he should write first. This is being a very gallant beau, and a very polite one.

2. No, it is best for the boy to write first to the girl.

Contract Bridge -:- OFFICIAL SYSTEM As Adopted by Leading Authorities

Establishing a Suit Before Pulling Trumps

Bidding went: Z, 1-Spade; neither A nor B did anything except pass; Y, 2-Clubs (not wishing to assist at once upon only three trumps); Z, 2-Spades; Y, 4-Spades (knowing that a slam must be impossible upon an opening bid of only one, made by a partner using Official Bidding).

The opening lead was A's fourth best heart. To preserve entry in dummy, the declarer won the trick in his own hand with the A, capturing B's J. The joint hands of declarer and dummy held four losing tricks in case trumps were pulled before establishing clubs, as follows: one heart, two clubs, and one diamond; even if dummy trumped one diamond before trumps were pulled. The only safe course was to lead clubs before touching trumps.

The first lead of clubs went to A's K. That player removed dummy's K by leading his 10 of hearts. A second round of clubs was led from dummy, and won by B's A. That player laid down his 9 of hearts, winning the third trick for his side, then he removed the A of diamonds from Y's hand, by leading his Q. This was done in the vain hope that A might hold a winning trump, so that the established clubs in dummy could not be utilized for discards of Z's losing diamonds. As the cards lay B's hopes were futile; Z dropped opposing trumps in three leads, winning the third trick in dummy, and discarding his two remaining diamonds upon two of Y's good clubs.

Cue Question Revived. Ring Title in Dispute.

BALKLINE KING MEETS ANGLE STARS

CAN THE GREATEST of balkline billiard players step over into the three-cushion division and cope successfully with the men who have made that game a specialty? This isn't the first time that question has been brought up, but it's still the subject of many arguments and debates in cue circles generally, and for that reason the play of Jake Schaefer, 18.2 balkline king, in the world championship three-cushion tournament opening in Chicago tonight, will be followed with unusual interest.

Jake Schaefer

For a long time the balkline experts refused to take the three-cushion game seriously. They insisted that balkline was the classical game of the green cloth and that the angle style was only jazz. In Pittsburgh years ago Willie Hoppe, then topping the balkliners, ridiculed three-cushions as "nothing but luck and not billiards at all." Hoppe further predicted that the game never would get anywhere nor become popular. In support of his assertion he said he had attended a league match at Johnny Kling's room in Kansas City and found that there were only 19 paid admissions.

THE GAME GREW in favor and Willie revised his opinion. He was even forced to back-pedal on his statement about its being all luck, for he had some personal experience to the contrary. He tried six times to win the title, but failed on every occasion. Twice he got as far as the final game in the tournament, only to be defeated there by Johnny Layton.

Now Schaefer will attempt to carry on the argument. It is the first time Jake has entered an angle tourney, but he has supporters among the soft-stroke advocates who believe he will demonstrate that a balkline champion can also become a world champion at three-cushions.

THIS OPINION IS not shared by close three-cushion students, however. They insist that the angle branch of billiards is a scientific game in itself and that a player experienced and skilled in it will win out in a tournament over any balkline star, even though the latter be a world beater at his own style.

It is conceded that Schaefer may show up well enough to finish among the leaders, but popular guesses name either Johnny Layton or Allen Hall as likely to beat him out. Arthur Thurnblad, strangely, is listed among the long shots, though he is the defending champion.

FOUR FORMER CHAMPIONS besides the present titleholder are included among the 12 players entered for the tournament starting tonight. Layton held the championship 10 times and won it three years in succession before being dethroned last winter. Augie Kiechhefer held it nine times, and Tiff Denton and Otto Reiselt also are former crown-bearers. The other entrants, in addition to Schaefer, are Hall, runner-up last year; Gus Copulos, a contender for many years; Frank Sconville, J. N. Bozeman, Bud Westhus and Len Kenny. Reiselt and Copulos represented Pittsburgh at different periods in the days of the old National Three-Cusion League.*

IN GOING FROM the Cardinals to the Cubs for the 1932 baseball season, Burleigh Grimes takes with him the enthusiastic recommendation of one former teammate, Jimmy Wilson, who, as a catcher, was more closely allied with the spitballer than any of the other St. Louis players.

Jimmy Wilson

"Grimes will make the Cubs tough," Wilson said. "It's too bad there are not 25 more men of the same type as Burleigh in our league. We'd have better ball clubs than we have now. Grimes likes to win every game he pitches. In fact, he'd never let the other fellows win if he could prevent it.

"BURLEIGH HAS A SPIRIT that one seldom sees in baseball nowadays—that is the spirit of a hard loser. Every player on a rival team is the spitballer's enemy during a game. He likes to fight, but he is no troublemaker, as has been reported.

"Grimes hates a player who is careless or lazy. He gives everything he has to a ball club. I think that he will prove just the man needed to balance the Cubs next season."

THE BOUT BETWEEN Tony Canzoneri and Johnny Jadick in Philadelphia tonight is advertised as being for the world junior welterweight championship, but there are numerous ring followers who don't believe a word of it. The manufactured title doesn't mean a thing to anybody and isn't worth even an argument, but there are many who think that, technically, Canzoneri never won it and therefore is undertaking to defend something that he doesn't own. When Jack (Kid) Berg supposedly lost the junior welter crown to Canzoneri he was trying for Tony's world lightweight honors and therefore had to weigh in at 135 pounds. The junior welter limit is 140, and on that account it is believed Berg's title was not at stake, as a man is entitled to weigh up to the full limit of his division before he can lose his crown. Canzoneri's claim to the title is based on the fact that Berg agreed to stake it, but there is an old sports rule that no handicap affair can be a championship contest, even though the handicap be self imposed.*

THE ACTION OF Eddie Casey, head football coach at Harvard, in declining appointment to the Massachusetts Boxing Commission had been expected by many followers of college sports, who doubted that Harvard officials would sanction Casey's being linked with the professional fight game.

The college heads are quoted as saying they had no objection to Casey's being a member of the commission, but the sudden turning down of the appointment, after both Casey and Gov. Joseph B. Ely had lo ied one day earlier a report that Eddie would decline to serve, would appear to indicate that the rejection of the post by the gridiron mentor was not wholly unsuggested.

GEORGE SPITZ, JR., 19-year-old Long Island lad who is probably the best high jumper in the world, and who holds the indoor record of 6 feet 7 inches, learned to jump over home-made standards rigged up in his own back yard, and without a bit of coaching or teaching from any one experienced in that branch of athletics.

George Spitz

"I didn't try for height at first, just form," said Spitz. "I worked out the western roll and all the other styles as I could remember them. Finally, I found that I was working into a style of my own—a kind of combination of the old scissors and the western roll. The scissors gives the kick. That's where I found I had an edge. That second kick of mine after I'm in the air is where I get my height.

"THE OUTDOOR RECORD of 6 feet 8¼ inches, held by Harold Osborne, is what I'm going after this year if I make the Olympic team. Of course, it all depends on ideal conditions—the weather, the firmness of the takeoff, your own condition, and all that. Oh, yes, in practice under perfect conditions I've done 6 feet 10 inches. But it's different in competition. You've got to be sure of yourself. I've known fellows—good jumpers, too—who became so scared when the bar was moved up that extra inch to record height that they went all to pieces and fell a foot below their best previous jumps. It's funny how scared you get. The whole thing depends on timing and co-ordination, and if you aren't sure of yourself you might as well quit. I used to get bar shy, but not any more. If you miss, you miss. The Olympics won't be different from any other meet."

DECISION TO BE REACHED NEXT MONTH

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The magnates of the Middle Atlantic League are just as optimistic as the citizens of Bugs Baer's Roughtown. When a Panic hit Bugs' famous village, the natives thought it was a Maypole, so they hung ribbons and danced around it.

Elmer Daily, from down Ebensburg way, and a right smart boy who has fooled many a city slicker since he became the head man of the Mid-Atlantic, is getting warmed up to call off the steps in another 12-club quadrille. These boys put on their big dance last year in the face of a lot of opposition, and apparently they had enough over and above to pay the fiddler, for the old gent is oiling up his bow for another big session.

Elmer and his buddies came to the city yesterday to hold their annual winter pow-wow. When they went into session at the Hotel Henry it seemed like a lot of Mid-Atlantic folks were insisting that the league be cut to eight clubs, but as midnight approached the unterrified lads from the neighborhood districts were cheering for more of the 12-club stuff.

TO MEET IN WHEELING

The minor league fellows adjourned last night without reaching a definite decision on the makeup of the league. There were so many angles to be considered that the magnates finally decided to meet at Wheeling on February 14 when the big question will be decided.

In the event that the Mid-Atlantic does continue as a 12-club affair, a new departure will be inaugurated. The plan afoot is to have a North and South division, each to consist of six clubs. Each section would have its own separate schedule and a split season. The half-time winners would then decide the sectional honors and then there would be an intersectional series to decide the ultimate victors.

An agreement was reached before the meeting closed whereby the various clubs will post their forfeits on or before the date of the next meeting. If 12 clubs "kick in" with the necessary forfeit money, the play outlined is likely to be adopted. In the event that some drop out in this automatic manner the circuit will go back to the eight-club arrangement.

ECONOMY PLANNED

The magnates also decided to adopt an economic policy in keeping with the times. They may cut salaries from $3,000 to $2,500 a month, and slash the player limit from 15 to 14.

President Daily, who seems to be in favor of the North and South divisions, paid a glowing tribute to the courage of the Mid-Atlantic backers. He said:

"When baseball men have sufficient enthusiasm to wish to keep their towns in our circuit, I think we should give them a hand instead of a foot. I feel they are showing most commendable traits in times like these, and I would like to go along with them as a matter of appreciation."

The minor leaguers took up many questions during their long ponderings, but the arguments on the size of the circuit occupied most of the time.

MANY ATTEND SESSION

The lobby of the Henry was crowded with diamond celebrities. Honus Wagner was on the scene. And there was Paul Krichell, Yankee scout, who roamed around with Leo Mackey, manager of the Cumberland club. The latter is a farm for the Yankees. Scottdale, a Cardinal farm for the past three years, will remain under the guidance of Redbird directors.

Russell Hockenbury, secretary-treasurer, of the Mid-Atlantic for many years, came down from Scottdale to do his trick.

All of the 12 clubs that made up the circuit last year were represented. Joe Carr, famed baseball man of Columbus, and a member of the new executive committee of the National Association, also attended.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF LAST SATURDAY: JIM HOCKING—Jim Hocking, pathfinder of the Walkers' Club of America, and described as the "daddy" of America's competitive walkers, announced in 1905, when he was 50 years old, that he would walk on every succeeding birthday as many miles as he was years old. He lived up to this promise until 1927, when he was hurt in an automobile accident shortly before his seventy-second birthday. Between these annual walks, the Grand Old Man of Walking participated in many competitive feats of pedestrianism, covering a total of 60,000 miles against time and competition. In March, 1921, at the age of 66, he walked from New York to Toronto, Canada, a distance of 538 miles, in eight days and three hours.

Out of the swirl of fists in the 10-round main bout in the Motor Square Garden ring tonight will emerge the recognized bantamweight champion of Pittsburgh.

Mose Butch Oakland Italian southpaw and Jimmy Thomas, Hill Negro, are the contenders. They have cleaned up everything in the way of opposition, and their meeting is rightly a final elimination.

Butch was to box Al Brown, world champion, in a non-title bout in the same ring last Monday night, but Brown showed up ill at the eleventh hour and the bout had to be canceled. Thomas was substituted for tonight's show.

RETURN ENGAGEMENT

This will be the second meeting between Butch and Thomas. In their first clash, Mose's southpaw stance baffled Jimmy no end and he wound up on the short end and with a deep-seated aversion to fighting wrongsiders. He has been practicing up on the art recently, however, with a return match with Butch in prospect, and believes he will be ready tonight.

BAXTER MEETS DELMONT

Charley Baxter, local lightweight, and Danny Delmont, of Chicago, who won their bouts at the Garden two weeks ago, clash in the eight-round semi-final tonight, with Bobby Stewart, Hill Negro, and Tony Vecchio, of West Virginia, in the second bout, and Bobby Burns, of Swissvale, and Johnny Montebano, of Braddock, in the opener at 8:30. Burns returns to the ring following a long layoff.

MORRISON WINS RICH TOURNEY

AGUA CALIENTE, Mexico, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Fred Morrison, of Culver City, Cal., won the world's richest golfing stake yesterday, the $15,000 Agua Caliente open, by playing the final 18 holes in 73, one more than par, for a 72-hole grand total of 284.

He won the $5,000 first prize in his initial appearance in a big-money tournament.

Morrison, who is 31 years old, was on top of the game during the four days' play. He shot a 69 in the rain and mud on Wednesday to lead the field by one stroke, took a 74 the next day for a fourth-place tie, and, after rain forced a one-day layoff, came back Saturday with a 68, to take the lead again.

Gene Sarazen, of New York, who won the first Agua Caliente open, in 1930, then worth $25,000, took second-place money of $2,500. His final round was played in 72, even par, which, with his previous cards of 70-72-72, gave him 286 strokes.

Olin Dutra, of Santa Monica, finished with a par-breaking 71 for the final round, to take third place and $1,500. He had 73-73-70 on the previous rounds for a total of 287.

Harry Cooper, of Chicago, after being in second place at the end of the third round, faltered on the final nine to take a 76 yesterday. This, added to his previous cards of 72-71-70, gave him a total of 289, for fourth place, worth $900.

RUDOLPH BEATS PONZI

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Edwin Rudolph, of Chicago, defeated Andrew Ponzi, of Philadelphia, nine blocks to five, in their special pocket billiard match here last night. Rudolph also led in total points, 1,544 to 1,401.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Jan. 18.—(AP.)—Louisville was selected unanimously for the 1932 Municipal Baseball Association tournament and all officers were re-elected at the closing session of the organization here yesterday.

SPORT VIGNETTES

A few days ago, Dave Kerr, former star of the Cleveland Rosenblums basketball team, who, by the way, is a "ringer" for Peck Lee, dropped in, along with Johnny Freund, local impresario of the floor sport, to visit Jack Scarry at the Homestead Library. A. C. . . . Talk drifted to many things and finally to the World War and Scarry pulled out some pictures of bouts in Nancy . . . "Why, I was timekeeper at those bouts," said Kerr . . . "That's nothing," said Scarry, "I was the referee." . . . Gene Tunney, who later won the world heavyweight championship, was a contestant . . . It's a small world.

Tiger Joe Randall, Negro welterweight boxer, of Elizabeth, was a visitor in the sports sanctum the other day, and inquired where Sally Martin, who writes the "Tell It to Sally" department daily in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph, might be found . . . He's an avid reader of her column, which deals mainly with problems of love and marriage . . . Jim McGirr, the McKeesport promoter, who is showing Tony Marino against Marty Gold in his main bout Thursday night, thinks Tony may go on to win a championship . . . The three boxers developed in this district who have interested McGirr most were Charleroi products, Cuddy DeMarco, Willie Davies and Young Carmen . . . Tony, a brother of Tommy Ryan, who made a lot of money for McGirr, has taken their places in his heart.

When Steve Hamas, former Penn State star, knocked out Tommy Loughran, former light-heavyweight champion, a few nights ago, to cinch his place in the ranks of the heavyweight contenders, the happiest man in these United States, aside possibly from Steve himself, was his kid brother, John (Jinx) Hamas, forward on the Westminster College basketball team. Steve is helping Jinx through college, and so long as he continues to make money in the ring Jinx's education is assured. . . . John is a junior and the smallest man on Coach John Lawther's squad of six-footers.

Cowboy Weston, the veteran billiard star, is an ice cream fiend! . . . Maybe Doc Carlson can use him on his Pitt basketball team. . . Pitt is on the Notre Dame schedule in four branches of sport, football, basketball, golf and track . . . Frank Lane, who will referee the Pitt-Notre Dame basketball game at South Bend next Saturday night, recently married 1930's "Miss America" . . . On the afternoon of the day Pitt played Butler at Indianapolis, so the story goes, Doc Carlson attended a dinner in honor of the newly-wedded couple and gave them a present and that night he and Lane almost came to blows over a decision in the basketball game, in which Lane officiated.

Great Britain will have two star sprinters in the Olympic games at Los Angeles in E. L. Page, of England, and F. P. Reid, of Scotland, who is rated the best dash man produced in the land of thistles since Eric Liddell . . . Page has done the 100-yard sprint in 9 4-5 seconds and the 100 meters in 10 4-5 seconds, and scored over Reid in both the British A. A. A. games and the England vs. France meet.

Between Rounds

Ted Lazear, of Monaca, leaves today for Detroit where he meets Jimmy Hill, a dangerous punching Filipino, in the main bout Friday night. Bulldog Burns, of Donora, and his manager, Abe Wilz, leave tomorrow for Flint, Mich., where Burns fights Eddie Anderson Thursday night.

Eddie Kaufman's new boxing club which opens its doors Friday night at near week, will be housed in the Pythian Temple, on the 3rd floor.

Chief Bender, Athletic A. Connie Mack's pitching mentor, is a member of Bugs Baer's Detroit baseball team, which defeated Bugs' Chicago team, 10 to 7, in a game at Bugs' baseball park in Roughtown last summer. He is serving out there at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association.

James Red Mason, boss of local hobo jungles, who has been living in the Pittsburgh area for months, trying to get an invalid pension from the government, has left for Washington, D. C., where he will attempt to secure a hallowed handicap as a promoter.

Harry Devine and Frankie Bojarski have been matched for a 10-round bout at Erie, Friday night. Devine recently grabbed a decision over Bojarski there, shortly after Frankie had suffered his first defeat at the hands of Billy Wallace, in Cleveland.

Jack Renfrew, McKeesport New Haven, Conn., district amateur middleweight champion, and Chuck Zelinsky, of Pittsburgh, will meet Matty Gold, of McKeesport, Thursday night at Matty Gold's home town, in the semi-final bout of the 10-round semi-final.

DUKES MEET BUCKNELL TONIGHT

PITT, CARNEGIE TO BATTLE WEDNESDAY

GAMES TONIGHT

Duquesne vs. Bucknell at Lewisburg.
St. Vincent vs. Kingston at Meadville.
Morris Harvey vs. Fairmont at Fairmont.

By JESS CARVER

If these two rivalers, which Dr. Cliff Carlson has trained upon last week to spy, tired and with varsity basketball performers at Pitt are set to whip themselves into shape for the Doctor's real basketball, the new-look brand of basketball of the Panther cage brigade is a little.

Carlson has a team that football stars and N. Y. U. Saturday night. He may have boys who have been away from the game for a period of days and after only two days of practice they display flashes of form. Max Morris, turned in a nice job of running against Joe Lettis, the Violet star. MacMurdo was a fine player in high school and for a big fellow he gets off to the ground amazingly well. Rocco Cutri was a star for the freshmen two years ago and Paul Collins, old Rip himself, was a member of the varsity squad in 1928.

GRIDDERS DETERMINED

There is no question but that the Panthers are shot-plus and right now. Even though they only faced one football team, N. Y. U., they showed in the short time they had the ball that they are determined to make a football team. If Carlson can use some of that football, make an attempt with his regular power and the basketballers are determined and serious in the intentions of helping out the squad, Pitt's losing streak which has now reached four games. Saturday Cat Schwartz, Duquesne and N. Y. U. may come to a very abrupt termination.

Carlson's regulars will not be called upon for heavy practice duty before the Tech game booked for Wednesday night but some of the reserves and the gridders will put in some extra hard duty tasks on tomorrow. It would have suited Carlson better to have had Tech take after Cliff Saturday night for now that the Tartan team is rolling and in resultant feeling of confidence has been sharpened, the battle will be very much on edge Wednesday.

The pivot men's circuit schedule has a full game opening set tonight and tickets will be on the run. The Jokers start a home game tonight, Forrest floors the meeting Bucknell at Lewisburg. From there they'll move into Washington, D. C., for successive contests with Georgetown Catholic and George Washington universities. Then they'll come home and rest a week before engaging Carnegie Tech in the contests that may decide the city championship.

GROVERS PROVIDE UPSET

Last week's record of wins and losses in this section included a single upset. Allegheny remained as the only major team unbeaten aside from the Dukes by tripping Thiel. Grove City provided the thrill by beating Carnegie in decisive fashion Saturday night. The Tartans minus the services of Lou Jagnow were unable to get by with two tough games in as many evenings. They had to battle all the way to nose out N. Y. U. Friday and I adn't enough left to stand off the Grovers.

Geneva played and won two games, taking Waynesburg and Wash-Jeff. West Virginia had a like record, beating Temple and Bethany. Waynesburg put in a tough week, losing to Geneva, St. Vincent and Penn State and Wash-Jeff remained in the still-after-a-win class by losing to both Bethany and Geneva.

N. Y. U.'s diminutive forward Eddie Linz, Marty Reiter crack Duquesne guard, Bob Smith, of Tech, and Joe O'Brien, of Temple, turned in the outstanding individual performances in local games. Linz's play against both Tech and Pitt was of unusual caliber.

When the Yellow Jackets leave tonight for London, Ont., to meet the Tecumsehs in a National Hockey League game there tomorrow, Coach Charley Reid will have no new talent to throw against the locals, play-off berth rivals. Reid has been blocked in his efforts to obtain Rusty Hughes, defense man, and Pete Palangio, forward, from Syracuse and negotiations now are at a standstill.

Attempts to obtain new players probably will be resumed later in the week when local banking interests controlling the Jackets appoint Elmer Whitehill, business manager and W. Duncan Taylor, assistant to Reid.

Scoring two goals in the last few minutes, the Castle Shannon Morrys won the right to enter the fourth round of the national amateur soccer cup competition by defeating Bridgeville, 2 to 0, at South Park yesterday, with 5,000 fans watching the struggle.

It was the largest crowd of the season at the South Park venue, and the playing field was in excellent shape.

DEFENSIVES STRONG

The teams had battled at Bridgemont for 90 minutes one week ago, and it seemed as if the defenses of the teams again were going to foil the scoring machines.

Smart and Van Jura were kicking great and the fans figured that a third meeting would be necessary. With only a few minutes to go, Bill O'Donnell, the old master, slipped the ball past Dalzuffo, and that sent the Shannon followers into a frenzy.

Three minutes later, Zeewan, with a beautiful run, beat the entire Bridgeville defense and flashed the ball into the corner of the net to put the game in the bag for Shannon.

HEIDELBERG COPS

In Panhandle League games, the Owls beat Coverdale, 3 to 0. Moon Run swamped Houston, 4 goals to 1. Heidelberg pulled a big surprise at Primrose winning, 4-1. Home Circle visited Washington Park and experienced little trouble in stopping the Veronas, 6-1, and the Shannon Juniors beat Curry, 3-1.

South View tied with Cedar Grove, 3-3. Sturgeon beat Grove, 2-to-1, and Ambridge and the Duquesne Republicans tied, 4-4, in other contests. The lineup

D. O'LOUGHLIN, M'ELLROY WIN NET TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Dr. Billy McElroy and Dave O'Loughlin, aces of the P. A. A. and dual net champions of Western Pennsylvania, galloped according to the form sheets yesterday to carry off top honors of the third annual Pittsburgh Golf Club midwinter men's doubles invitation tennis tournament. 'Twas not before they had experienced many an anxious moment, however, that they ultimately battered through to victory, and the numerous throng that turned out to pack the limited gallery space available in the P. G. C. covered enclosure copped quite a treat as the district title-holders fought uphill battle to register four-set final victory over the home club stars, Collie Burgwin and Charley Lockhart, 4-6, 6-3, 8-6, 6-2.

Lack of outdoor practice was apparent in the play of all parties, the exhibit running the gamut from the sensational to the erratic as the combat breezed along from mid-afternoon till early evening.

McElroy and O'Loughlin were handed a scare by their Edgewood rivals, McCook Reed and Paul Hicks, 1930 West Penn premiers, in a semi-final debate, but finally won, 6-6, 7-5, 6-2. In the other semi-final, Burgwin and Lockhart accounted for William Penn Snyder, Jr., and Billy Jacobs, 7-5, 7-5.

COLTS SIGN VITTELLI

By TOM BIRKS

Manager Leo Mackey, of the Cumberland Middle Atlantic League Club, announced yesterday at the league's session in the Hotel Henry he has signed Joe Vittelli, local pitcher, who twirled the Book team to a split-season title in the City League last season.

Previous to the announcement, Mackey had been in conference with President Nelson Russler, of the Cumberland Club, and Paul Kritchell, scout of the New York Yankees, and had signed to lead the champions again this season.

Mackey has been successful piloting clubs with a Yankee connection. He won the pennant with Chambersburg, in the Blue Ridge League, in 1930, and with the disbanding of the loop, he went to the Colts last season, and won the pennant for Col. Russler.

Mackey expects much from Vittelli. Joe was classed as the outstanding pitcher in the City League last season.

A number of local sandlot products were sitting around: George Spiers, Lute Boone, Sully Ross, looking for managerial jobs; Frank Packard, Homewood boy, who had such a wonderful season down South, and now with Baltimore, Elmer Knetzer, Bennett, Red Robinson, Bull Brown and Ed Harvey, who was up looking after the Beaver Valley interests.

Honus Wagner, just another sandlotter, also dropped in to place a couple of promising youths.

Nigro, chairman; Paul Drooness, vice chairman, and Max Feldman, secretary.

J. Griffith Breaks Rifle League Mark

a boys' camp outing last summer, overturned, has completely recovered from his injuries, and is back at his duties at Carnegie. Unfortunately, Risedorph suffered the loss of his right arm as a result of the accident . . . Engineers have been inspecting Tech's gymnasium lately with a view to increasing the seating capacity. The present accommodations are not nearly sufficient for the recent crowds. The Tartan authorities figure that the radio broadcasts of their basketball games this season have produced many new customers . . . Incidentally, the crowds following the Dukes' basketball team are growing so large that th. Bluffites may have to transfer their home games to Motor Square Garden to accommodate the turnouts.

Jim Fergus, Carnegie Tech's brilliant basketball guard, never keeps track of the points he scores. But he can tell you immediately how many have been scored against him . . . His opponents this season have averaged slightly more than one basket per game against him.—HARRY KECK.

Sportsmen Rally At Meeting Friday

District sportsmen will carry on their fight to have the State Game Commission kept out of politics at a meeting to be held in the Chamber of Commerce Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

The feature of this session will be the receiving of the report of the committee delegated to confer with Gov. Gifford Pinchot and the departments affected in the controversy at Harrisburg. The meeting will be open to the public and some fireworks are anticipated.

The fight of the sportsmen is to return conditions to their old status under which they themselves governed their sport. They claim interference during the present administration has seriously hampered their program.

Volume of Steel Orders Show Expansion

CLEVELAND, Jan. 18.—(AP)—More bright spots in the steel industry are reported by the magazine, Steel. None of the major consuming groups exhibit a marked tendency toward improvement, but practically all are contributing in larger measure to the rising volume of steel orders.

STEEL SHORTS PAY PREMIUM

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—Short sellers of United States Steel common stock today found themselves facing one of the severest charges for this kind of market accommodation since the bear market started.

A "premium of five-sixteenths" was quoted on loans of the stock. In effect, this represented a carrying charge of $31.25 per day for each 100 shares of the stock that the short seller desired to borrow. At the present rate, persons wishing to sell 100 shares of the stock short would have to be prepared to pay $187.50 for such accommodation for one trading week.

Brokers stated that present available market or floating supply of Steel common has been steadily vanishing, and the present high premium for loaning purposes is the result. Investors have been buying the stock for long pull investment, and taking it out of the market.

NEW ORLEANS BANKER SEES RECOVERY

U. S. Finance Corporation Launching to Mark Turn, Southern Expert Believes

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW ORLEANS, La., Jan. 18.—This southern metropolis, though disturbed by the deflation hurricane, appears to be weathering the economic storm better than the average American city.

Rudolph Hecht, president of the Hibernia Bank and Trust Company here and chairman of the American Policy Commission of the American Bankers Association, told me that he thinks that the launching of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will mark a turning of the economic tides.

Mr. Rukeyser.

With much wreckage around, Hecht, who is one of the outstanding financial personalities south of the Mason-Dixon line, believes economic recovery will necessarily be slow, but he is confident that recuperation is on the schedule.

Hecht's expert testimony concerning conditions hereabouts is distinctly encouraging. For example, in these days of threatened municipal insolvency, Hecht was proud to be able to say that:

"The City of New Orleans municipal finances are in a satisfactory condition as is evidenced by the fact that besides paying more than $1,000,000 in interest on its bonded indebtedness on January 1, 1932, the city is actually retiring as of the same date a total of more than $3,000,000 of various bonds, thus reducing its indebtedness by that amount at a time when many municipalities throughout the country unfortunately are experiencing serious problems in meeting even their current obligations.

"In the New Orleans industrial area there are concrete evidences of renewed confidence and consequent commercial and manufacturing expansion."

Carnegie Boosts Schedules at Farrell Mill

Carnegie Steel Company has placed a sharply higher schedule in effect at its Farrell plant, where ingot production is being lifted to approximately 50 per cent of capacity, compared with 30 to 40 per cent recently. Eight of the 15 open-hearth furnaces at the Farrell works will soon be in production against seven in recent weeks, and it is probable will be melting throughout the week whereas a half-week schedule has been in effect at the plant.

Steel Common Watched Closely for Cue to Market Trend

Those taking full cognizance of the outside developments in Washington bearing on the credit situation and those in Chicago on the matter of rail wages, the speculative fraternity is not inclined to lose sight of the fact that the action of Steel common is still a quantity to be reckoned with in seeking to gauge the general market's prospects in the next week or 10 days. Steel has given the cue to the trend of the general market since the recovery got under way. And with its directors slated to meet a week from Tuesday, to make public earnings and take dividend action, the stock will be watched closely in the interval.

It is now believed the Steel Corporation has another "nest egg" in the way of "other income" to bolster its report for the final quarter probably as much as $7,000,000, but it is realized too that very likely this item will be offset to some extent by indicated loss sustained from operations. Despite late talk of probable regular dividend, there is a widespread feeling that reduction to a $2 basis is to be anticipated.

Repurchasing by investors with a view to reinstating holdings disposed of last month in the process of registering losses for use in making income tax returns, is a factor which may carry considerable weight in shaping the market's course over the next few weeks, brokers say. Such selling added heavily to the market's burden, particularly in the period from the beginning of November through the closing month of the year. For many such sellers, the 30-day interval, which must elapse by law before replacement, has expired. The market around current levels, it is true, does not afford really satisfactory basis for replacement except to those who sold for tax purposes late in November and during the first week of December, but on any setback demand of that character might be expected to assert itself.

The specter of a renewal of the pull on our gold by European financial centers has arisen again with the establishment of the French franc above the gold export point once more. There has been some discussion of the prospect for French withdrawals in the event that conditions in the open money market at New York changed so as to reduce prospective earning capacity for balances maintained in this country. Evidently last week's slashing of bill rates has tended to set that anticipated pull in motion.

A group has been operating in National Dairy Products recently, taking advantage of general market conditions. Considerable switching from other issues has been in progress, and the sleeping short interest which existed in the stock was a factor in bringing about the recent upturn. Several years ago the stock was one of the popular speculative favorites. There are rumors that important dairy interests are considering an advance in price of milk. This would be advantageous to National Dairy.

Several times in recent weeks there has been a spurt in U. S. Industrial Alcohol. In each instance the purchasing failed to follow when the stock moved ahead. This demand has been interpreted as accumulation for the long pull. It is known that those who took the stock have been maintaining their holdings.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Market Drifts — Local Market Quiet

MARKET DRIFTS IN SLUGGISH TRADING

Price Movement, in Main, Narrow and Indecisive; Steel at High Premium

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—(AP)—The stock market was unable to find its way through a confusion of speculative opinion in Wall street today.

Prices drifted uncertainly in sluggish trading. Strength in wheat, and the pressing of shorts in a few stocks imparted a fairly firm tone at times, but in the main, the price movement was narrow and indecisive.

United States Steel commanding a high premium in the loan crowd was up about 1 2 points and Case advanced as much. Similar gains appeared in International Harvester, Sears Roebuck, Alaska Juneau, Safeway Stores and some of the New York tractions. There was further bullish activity in Homestake Mining which rose 5 points. American Sugar was a weak feature losing about 5 points and rails turned somewhat heavy. Union Pacific lost 2 points and several sagged fractionally.

With expectations that several days would be required finally to enact the Reconstruction Finance Corporation measure and to conclude an agreement on railroad wages, brokerage quarters were inclined to feel that a drifting market was about the best that could be expected for the time being. Financial quarters are chiefly concerned, at the moment, over the reconstruction measure and the rail wage conference.

The high premium on United States Steel in the loan crowd made the short position expensive and prompted considerable covering. Some professional traders feel that a technical setback is due, and have put out short lines on that theory. The premium was explained as presumably reflecting the withdrawal of substantial amount of stock from the market by investment purchases and the disinclination of some brokers to loan stocks for bearish operations.

The money market was plentifully supplied and outside call money was offered as low as 2 per cent against 2½ late last week. The official rate remained at 2½.

WHEAT PRICES GO HIGHER

CHICAGO, Jan. 18.—Brisk new jumps in wheat values here took place early today despite setbacks in securities and notwithstanding relatively unresponsive action of wheat quotations at Liverpool. Unusually active buying boosted most Chicago deliveries of wheat to the topmost point reached since November 24. Opening ½-1¼ higher, Chicago wheat futures continued firm. Corn started at ⅛ decline to ⅛ advance and subsequently held near the initial range.

The main incentive for wheat buyers today continued to be rumors that a pool had been formed to purchase wheat and other commodities likely to be stimulated by adoption of the finance reconstruction act at Washington. In addition, apprehensive reports about domestic winter wheat crop prospects were a bullish factor. A leading expert reported that over Northern Illinois the wheat plants instead of being matted to the ground as they should be at this time were sappy and erect, with growth as much advanced as in April.

Progress Is Dominating Keynote Now

—By B. C. FORBES—

Mr. Forbes

PROGRESS was the dominating keynote last week.

MOST ENCOURAGING of all was the interest shown by the public in the new models exhibited at the New York automobile show. Not only did the attendance exceed the most optimistic expectations, but the volume of sales actually effected was beyond all anticipations. A remarkably large number of visitors recorded their desire to trade in their present cars for new ones; this list of prospects will immediately receive attention from salesmen.

The most significant feature was the public's astonishment at the values offered. Almost every manufacturer has achieved definite improvements in performance and appearance without raising prices. Since America's total stock of cars has been wearing out on a scale far beyond the replenishing done during the last two years, the pent-up demand naturally is far above normal.

On the whole, the initiative, courage, aggressiveness exercised by our motor industry promise to reap satisfactory rewards. This industry has contributed more than any other to stimulating general business recovery.

EVENTS AT WASHINGTON were distinctly encouraging. Much is expected of the $2,000,000,000 reconstruction finance corporation. It is now confidently expected that the organization will receive the presidential signature this week, and that it will immediately begin functioning under conspicuously able management.

Congress has demonstrated in other ways that it is anxious to speed up legislation calculated to improve sentiment and business. For once partisan politics is being subordinated to patriotic objectives.

THE CURRENT WEEK is counted upon to bring an amicable solution of the railway wage problem. Signing of a new agreement would, in Wall street's opinion, have a potent effect upon railway securities.

RETAIL TRADE reports are mixed. Industrial activity continues disappointing. Such indices as railway car loadings, bank debits, electric power consumption, employment figures, do not afford convincing proof that a universal upward trend has yet set in. Bank and other failures are still unpleasantly numerous.

Of commodity prices the best that can be said is that they hold their own. This, however, is very much more gratifying than had the downward tendency continued unchecked.

THE FINANCIAL WORLD enjoyed a good week. Stocks advanced an average of five points, bringing them almost 20 per cent above the January 5 minimum. Both domestic and foreign bonds also showed firmness.

A lowering of bill buying rates was interpreted as foreshadowing easy money steps by the Federal Reserve. Some newspapers are talking a lot about "inflation." That was the word coined by French anti-Americans to describe our government's constructive proposals. Unfortunately it has been too widely accepted and repeated parrot-like here. What this country is suffering from is overdone deflation. We are in no immediate danger of running into undue "inflation."

So far nothing is within sight which could not be more accurately described as anti-deflation measures.

PERHAPS MOST IMPORTANT, there are slightly more signs that those in high places are getting over their nervousness. Let improvement persist for another week or two, and the whole complexion of affairs in this country would doubtless undergo a notable change for the better. It is high time such an attitude developed.

THE BEAST OF THE CITY -:- -:- A Story of Fatal Beauty That Lurks In All Big City Jungles -:- -:- By JACK LAIT

Mayor Objects to Jim for Arresting Influential Vice Leaders

CHAPTER X.

They made quite a ceremony at City Hall when Fightin' Jim Fitzpatrick was inducted into office as Chief of Police of the Big Burg. Jim spoke his piece over the microphone, said his say to the newspaper reporters and listened to the congratulations of his friends. But he was anxious to get busy, and within an hour after he had assumed direction of the 18,000 policemen he assembled all his main officers at headquarters.

"Men," he said, "there is no need of me telling you the conditions that exist in this town. You wouldn't be cops if you didn't know. But things are going to be damn different. I'm going to wreck organized vice and crime if I have to work every man night and day. For the present there won't be any changes—only I'm going to reorganize the Strong Arm Detail and I'm going to shove the toughest, roughest, fightin'est men on the force in it."

He gesticulated as he spoke and paced up and down before the two hundred officers. His countenance was stern and his jaw was set.

"This town is honeycombed with speakeasies, honky tonks and gambling joints. Everything's been running wide open. I want you to instruct every man on beat to make a detailed report of these dives in his territory. Don't come to me with excuses that the officer on beat don't know what's going on. I used to travel beat myself. The flying squad from headquarters will take care of the worst of them. And the others must be closed and must stay closed!"

The chief stood a moment and surveyed the carpet of faces below him. Then he jumped down from the platform.

"That's all!" he cried curtly. "Except—I mean it!"

ED SEEKS PROMOTION

He strode into his office. Tom and Mac were waiting there for him.

"That's tellin' 'em," said Mac proudly.

"You know it—and they know it's no kiddin'!" seconded Tom.

"I want you boys to stay in my office," said Jim. "In a kind of confidential capacity—see?"

"Okay, Chief!" exclaimed Mac.

"Can the chief stuff, Mac. I'm just plain Jim to you fellows." And Jim grasped their hands. For a moment the three stood looking at each other. Their friendship had been cemented by many a hard battle—battles in which men stand side by side and fight for their lives.

"Ed's outside, Jim," said Tom. "Shall I tell him to come in?"

"Sure—send him right in."

Tom and Mac left. Jim took his seat at his desk and the door opened and Ed came in. His eyes were swollen and bloodshot—for he had made a night of it with Daisy. He was in a surly mood and the liquor still throbbed through his veins. But he smiled, an unenthusiastic smile.

"Congratulations, Jim," he said half-heartedly.

"Thanks, Ed," said Jim, getting up and putting an arm around his brother's shoulder. "You look a little washed out, kid—take it easy."

"Oh, I'm okay, Jim—but don't rub it in," there was a petulant note in Ed's voice. He threw a leg over the corner of the desk.

"Now that you're chief, I suppose you'll do something for your kid brother," he said. A sober look spread over Jim's face.

"Listen, kid—just because I'm chief I'm not going to make a fool of myself," he said. "When you deserve a promotion I'll see that you get it—but just because I'm your brother I'm not going to step you over more deserving men."

"Well, now isn't that a fine way to talk!" exclaimed Ed. "I'd think you'd look out after your own brother first. To hell with the others. I've gotta make some more money, Jim."

SARCASTIC ATTITUDE

"Ed, I can't figure you taking that attitude. It would be the rawest thing on earth for me to give you a promotion right off the bat. It would crimp the morale of the whole department—don't you see that?"

"No, I certainly don't!" hotly retorted Ed.

"Well, it hurts me for you to act that way. I'd think you could see my set-up. I can't afford to play favorites, even if you are my brother. Straighten up and work hard and cut out the way you're living, and the promotion will come."

"That's a deuce of a way to talk!" snapped Ed. "I come in here to congratulate you——"

"And chisel a favor," interrupted Jim. He grabbed Ed's arm. "Listen, kid—don't rush things. You know I'll do anything I can for you. But you've got to do something for yourself. Now, buck up and get busy——"

"Well, the least you could do would be to give me a berth in your office," whined Ed.

Jim flushed.

"I'm telling you I'm not playing any white-haired pets—even if—even if——"

"I am your own brother!" retorted Ed. Jim plunked down at his desk and began sorting some papers, his hand trembling. Ed looked at him a moment and then started out.

"Okay, Chief!" he exclaimed and brought his heels together and saluted. His tone was bitter and sarcastic. Jim did not reply, and Ed turned and went out, slamming the door.

* * *

Fightin' Jim Fitzpatrick acted quickly. Before the tip-off he had his flying squad of one hundred men organized and in the field. They synchronized their raids at ten o'clock on the night he took office. He struck at the underworld unaware, and before morning the precinct jails were crowded with a disgruntled and belligerent crew of men and women.

The biggest of the big-shots were brought to headquarters. Lawyers and bondsmen were scurrying about the town all night. And the next morning the newspapers blazoned across the front pages the details of the biggest series of raids in the history of the city. Belmonte would have been yanked in, and orders were out to bring him in, but he could not be found. He was one who had been tipped to "lay low."

Then came the kick-back. Every political wire in the city was stretched taut and they jangled out a merry symphony. The discordant music deafened the Mayor, and so he hurriedly called in Chief Fitzpatrick.

"Jim," he said seriously, a harrassed look on his face, "you've gone too far. Entirely too far. It's okay to clean up the town, make a bunch of pinches and show that you are busy, but you can't afford to bother some of the main shots. Now, when you arrested Tony Tua out at the Woodside Inn——"

"I don't see any difference in any of them," hotly retorted Chief Jim. "That guy was running a wide-open gambling joint, and even if his place is run for a bunch of big bugs in evening clothes, I can't see why he can operate."

"Now, Jim," said the mayor, assuming a fatherly air, "don't be too hasty. Everbody thinks that you want to get in and make a splurge so you'll make a name right off the bat. Take things a little bit easy. You've got me in a pot of goulash."

"Well," protested Jim, throwing up his hands. "You were the one who told me you wanted things shut down—you were getting hollers about this and that——"

"Yes—yes, I know," hurriedly cut in the Mayor. "But I didn't think you needed a text-book of instructions. It was only the newspapers and these so-called civic reform busybodies who were howling. You know as well as I do how they can be muzzled, or at least muffled. You can make all the pinches you want to—but don't nab the wrong guys."

"Well, it's the wrong guys who are right for nabbing, from my way of thinking," replied Jim.

"And the wrong guys are many times the right guys—if you follow me," and the mayor smiled at his little joke.

"Well, what do you want me to do?"

"Jim," queried the mayor a bit sadly. "Don't you know that every well organized police department has got to have the proper arresting material? If there's a murder, Jim, you pick up a goat whose picture and record are in the newspaper morgue, a fall-guy who can take the rap. If it's a labor slugging you get a bruiser who is known for such work. All these guys you make a deal with beforehand—or else they take the rap, or get rapped; the newspapers are satisfied, the public is satisfied, and everybody's satisfied and nobody's hurt—much. Get together some good arresting material and play with that. After all the ballyhoo and hullabaloo are over the goof gets out—so you can use him next time. You ought to know all about that."

"Yes," said Jim slowly, "I guess I ought to know."

"Then use your noodle. If I'm not re-elected you're out, too. Don't be such a patriot. Nathan Hale was—and look at how he finished!"

ALL IN A DAY

By MARK HELLINGER

FROM Herb M. Israel, of the Wisconsin News, comes an excellent illustration of the gratitude that is often displayed in the show business. If it's a trifle bitter, don't blame me.

Years ago one of the most popular picture outfits in the country today was just a struggling little concern. Out in Seattle, Wash., there was a man whom I will call Jones who believed in that outfit implicitly. He was more than willing to handle their output and it was he who sold their pictures throughout the northwestern territory. Incidentally, Jones had a film exchange and several theaters in that section of the country. Which made him a rather important figure in the business.

Whenever they needed money—which was frequently—the struggling picture organization would wire Jones for an advance on their pictures. Jones would advance the cash, get the films out of hock and peddle them for the picture concern before his money was returned. Sometimes it was even necessary for Jones to send them money to cover themselves on checks they had phoned in order to keep going.

I wish we all had friends like Jones must have been to that picture concern. We'd all be a little happier, I guess . . .

We'll skip plenty of years and open our second chapter in a thriving city in the Middle West. Jones has moved from Seattle and has opened a picture house in the city in question. His loyalty to that concern has not changed with the years. They do not need him now as they needed him in days gone by, but Jones is still with them heart and soul.

Sound arrived. Plenty of theaters and most showmen were leary of the proposition—but not Jones.

He wired his theater immediately. He was the first man to pounce upon the opportunity, and it was unquestionably he who made the talkie a success in his part of the country.

From the motion picture outfit came many words of congratulations. They were now taking more notice of Jones than ever before. Pictures from all the executives of the concern began to arrive in Jones' office. The president wrote on his that Jones was his pal and friend through the years, and the others inscribed similar sentiments.

"Those are men," he would sigh. "Real men. They never forgot what I did for them in the old days. Not they. They're too real and honest and sincere. Not like the other people in show business.

"When I helped them out with money years ago, people told me I was crazy. I went right ahead. When I saw the value of their pictures in sound, and wired my theater in a hurry, people again told me I was crazy. But I went right ahead.

"And those pictures are my answer. Those men love me for what I have done for them. They know they have a real friend. It only goes to prove that, when you are really loyal to the right people, you can never go wrong."

Chapter three—and the blackout. Came the year 1929, and dark days just around the corner. The motion picture business started into a nose dive from which it has never quite recovered. And it was only natural that Jones should suffer with the rest.

He hesitated for some time, but he finally took action. His contract with the outfit in question had until 1931 to run. He saw the necessity of slashing his admission prices, but he couldn't possibly make both ends meet unless the cost of his film rentals was reduced at the same time.

So he appealed to his pals. He wrote first to the president—"his pal and friend through the years." Then he wrote, wired and called the others all along the line. In each case the answer was the same.

"We're sorry," they told him, "but your contract runs until 1931. We cannot help you."

"But," Jones pointed out, "how about the many times I helped you out? If it hadn't been for me, there's a good chance there wouldn't have been any concern of yours today. How about the advances I made you in the old days? How about the checks I had to square for you? Do all these things mean nothing to you?"

The reaction never varied.

"Sorry," they said. "But a contract is a contract."

The contract finally expired. And what do you suppose the picture outfit did then? Make redress to Jones for his losses or tender him a new contract at more reasonable terms? Say not so, my friends.

They opened a new 3,000-seat picture house just across the way from Jones' little theater and are now running their pictures there in opposition . . .

JUST TO MAKE it a real "gratitude" day, here's an episode that actually took place in front of Moore's restaurant only a short time ago. Moore's, as you undoubtedly know, is the rendezvous for the theatrical and sporting fraternity in New York. The food is the best that money can buy, and the prices are scaled accordingly.

A well-known musical comedy writer was just about to enter that spot the other night when he was hailed by a chap who stood to the right of the entrance.

"Lo, George!" said the man. "You remember me?"

The writer looked at the other's face. He shook his head. The other man smiled.

"I'm Frank B——," he stated. "Don't you remember now? I played in one of your shows at the Globe. Can't you recall?"

The author lied beautifully.

"Oh, sure," he returned. "Now I place you. What are you doing these days?"

That seemed to be the opportunity the actor was waiting for. He leaped right in.

"Tell you the truth, George," he asserted swiftly, "I'm not doing a thing. Times are tough, and I'm really up against it. Would you believe me if I told you that I haven't eaten in two days?"

The writer placed a hand in his pocket. Couldn't give this bird a quarter or a half. Why not be a little liberal? He finally handed the actor a dollar. Instead of thanking him, the actor pocketed the money and appeared a trifle disappointed.

"What's the matter?" cried the author. "Something wrong?"

The actor shrugged his shoulders.

"Well," he returned, "of course, I want to thank you. But you didn't expect me to eat in Moore's on a dollar, did you?"

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER THEATERS JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

There was plenty of fun and excitement at the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meetings Saturday. The stage shows at these meetings are growing bigger and better every week.

DAVIS CHAPTER

The Davis Chapter, made up of children from the Hill district, West End and South Side, were entertained by a group of boys and girls from the Barth School of Dancing.

Little Miriam Perlestine acted as mistress of ceremonies and introduced her fellow performers in truly professional style. Among the little artists were the Six Dancing Dolls, who are being trained along the lines of the Tiller Girls; Conny Fitzwilliams, Jane Kopf, Raymand Kopf, Billy Swogger and David Carey.

ETNA SHOW

The Lapertche Orchestra, comprised of members of Cameraphone Chapter of the Junior Komic Club, were the guest performers at Etna Chapter Saturday. On the stage were Marian Marloff, Rea Jane Harn and Jane Neff, all from the Barth School of Dancing. The "Take a Chance" show, advertised for Saturday, surpassed all expectations. There was a great show, candy for everyone and prizes for winners of contests.

News of the 17 chapters of the club will be found in this column of the Sun-Telegraph every day. Follow it every day and keep in touch with what other chapters are doing. On Sunday you will enjoy listening in on WCAE at 12.30 to hear Uncle Bob reading the Sun-Telegraph komics to little Betty. They will tell you about Toots and Casper, Popeye and all the other characters we know so well.

Watch for the club news.

THEY PAID ME A LOT OF MONEY BUT I EARNED MOST OF IT TRYING TO AGREE WITH THOSE DIPPY DIRECTORS EVERY TIME THEY DISAGREED.
I WAS THINKING OF RESIGNING EVEN BEFORE THEY GAVE ME THE AIR.
I WAS SIMPLY SELLING THEM MY NERVOUS SYSTEM ON THE TIME-PAYMENT PLAN. FINANCIALLY SPEAKING I'LL ADMIT I WAS RINGING THE BELL BUT I WAS BEGINNING TO HEAR A LOT OF OTHER FUNNY NOISES IN MY NOODLE TOO.
I'M NOT WORRIED ABOUT LOSING THAT JOB. MONEY IS IMPORTANT BUT YOU CAN'T SPEND IT IN A WHEEL CHAIR.
ALL I'VE LOST, PROBABLY, IS AN OPPORTUNITY TO TRADE $1,000.00 WORTH OF HEALTH FOR ONE OF THOSE $100,000 CAREERS THAT MERELY MAKES ANOTHER GOOD CUSTOMER FOR THE SLEEPING POWDER TRUST.
ANOTHER CONSOLATION IS THAT NEVER BEFORE IN MY BUSINESS CAREER HAVE I BEEN BOOTED OUT OF A JOB IN SUCH A REFINED WAY.
ANYHOW I'M NOT WORRIED. I GET THE SAME THRILL OUT OF PLAYING SECOND FIDDLE—TEMPORARILY—THAT I DO OUT OF LEADING THE BAND. THERES A BRIGHT SIDE TO EVERYTHING. RAINY DAYS ARE BIG STUFF IF YOU'RE IN THE UMBRELLA GAME, AND SO FORTH.

THE NEBBS — Nothing Doing

IT SEEMS THAT NOTHING CAN CHANGE SYLVIA'S MIND ABOUT OBTAINING A DIVORCE FROM AMBY — WHETHER SHE HAS LOST HER LOVE FOR HIM (IF SHE EVER HAD ANY) OR WHETHER SHE CAN'T FORGIVE HIM FOR LEAVING HER IS HER SECRET. ANYWAY THE HEARING IS SET FOR WEDNESDAY JAN. 20 TH.
I'LL GO OVER TO SYLVIA'S AND TELL HER THAT YOU'LL CONSENT TO THE DIVORCE IF SHE DOESN'T SUE FOR ALIMONY
IF SHE DON'T WANT TO BE MY WIFE, SHE AIN'T GOIN' TO GET NO MONEY
SYLVIA, I DON'T WANT YOU TO THINK I'M BUTTING INTO YOUR AFFAIRS BUT AMBROSE ASKED ME TO COME AND TELL YOU THAT IF YOU DON'T SUE FOR ALIMONY, HE WON'T CONTEST THE DIVORCE
THIS MATTER IS ENTIRELY IN MY ATTORNEYS HANDS BUT I WILL SAY THIS - IF THAT PENNY PINCHER THINKS HE CAN DRAG ME AWAY FROM A GOOD HAPPY HOME AND THEN DESERT ME WITHOUT PAYING FOR IT, HE'S AS DUMB AS HE LOOKS - YOU TELL HIM TO GET HIS HAIR CUT AND HIS SHOES SHINED AND I'LL MEET HIM IN COURT

An Impressive Meeting

There has been a disposition in some quarters to belittle Father Cox's leadership of the unemployed. He has been accused of ulterior motives. The Republican National Committee questioned the good faith of the march to Washington.

The impressive rally of his followers at the Pitt Stadium Saturday should silence these critics for it is extremely improbable that Father Cox could have gathered such support through false pretenses.

There is no reason, in short, to doubt that the great movement which he heads is anything else but what he says it is—an effort to prod the federal government into doing something to help the jobless. His proposal that the government issue $5,000,000,000 of bonds for the construction of public works on which the destitute can be given employment, originally sponsored by William Randolph Hearst, has the indorsement of the country's foremost economists.

Father Cox is seeking to make the government in fact what Lincoln said it should be—a government of, by and FOR the people.

The size of the audience that he drew to the Stadium gives warning that he is a power with whom the authorities at Washington must reckon.

Business Improvement

The Revival in the Glass and Pottery Industry Is Encouraging.

The annual glass and pottery show now being held in Pittsburgh has attracted more buyers than last year.

C. H. West, president of the Associated Glass and Pottery Manufacturers, says indications are that more goods will be bought than at last year's show, which brought $50,000,000 worth of business.

It is significant that while the buyers are calling for moderately priced material the quantities ordered are very large.

Mr. West says 2,000 additional glass and pottery workers will have to be employed in the tri-state district during the next month to fill the orders.

It looks as if the shelves of the dealers and the warehouses of the manufacturers of glassware and pottery were empty and as if the dam behind which orders were accumulating had at last given way.

There must be many other lines of business in the same condition. Demand has been piling up for many months, but has been resisted. The point is now at hand at which needs can no longer remain unsatisfied. The dam of "sales resistance" is bound to give way soon and the business stream to resume its accustomed course.

Not Hopeless

The State Sanitary Water Board Issues an Encouraging Statement Concerning Polluted Streams

The city has to spend as much as $1,000 a day at times for chemicals with which to treat the Allegheny River water to make it fit for domestic use.

The acid in the water of the Monongahela and Ohio as well as the Allegheny and their principal tributaries causes millions of dollars of damage annually by corroding boilers and other metal objects.

Fish life has disappeared because of the pollution.

Yet the local rivers are not hopeless. Pure clean water may some day be restored.

There is encouragement for this belief in a statement just issued by the State Sanitary Water Board, which is charged by law with control of the purity of all waters in Pennsylvania. The board states that while it has classified some streams as given over to sewage and industrial and mining wastes the classification must be regarded as only temporary, as the possibility of reclaiming and purifying even the most contaminated waters is constantly kept in mind.

Conditions That Prevailed During 1931 Are Reflected In the Coroner's Report.

Coroner W. J. McGregor's report for 1931 is unusually interesting because it is in a sense a picture of the year. The record of fatalities reflects the conditions that prevailed.

Mill and mine accidents claimed fewer victims than the year before. While the safety movement played some part in this, it is to be feared that the slackening of industry also was a factor. Railroad fatalities showed a decrease, too; there was less traffic.

Suicides mounted to an unprecedented figure. It may have been mere coincidence, but we suspect that despair born of destitution was partly to blame.

College Graduates

It pays to go through college. Indeed in many lines of endeavor nowadays it is a handicap not to have a degree.

These reflections are prompted by a report issued by the State Department of Public Instruction which shows that 24.9 per cent of the teachers in the public schools of Pennsylvania are college graduates. Ten years ago the percentage was only 7.6.

The number of young men and women in Pennsylvania who have degrees conferred on graduating from college has grown so large that in certain fields of activity such as school teaching, applicants for positions who lack degrees are under great disadvantage.

Unemployed youths might well go to college if they possibly can, to improve their chances of obtaining good positions later.

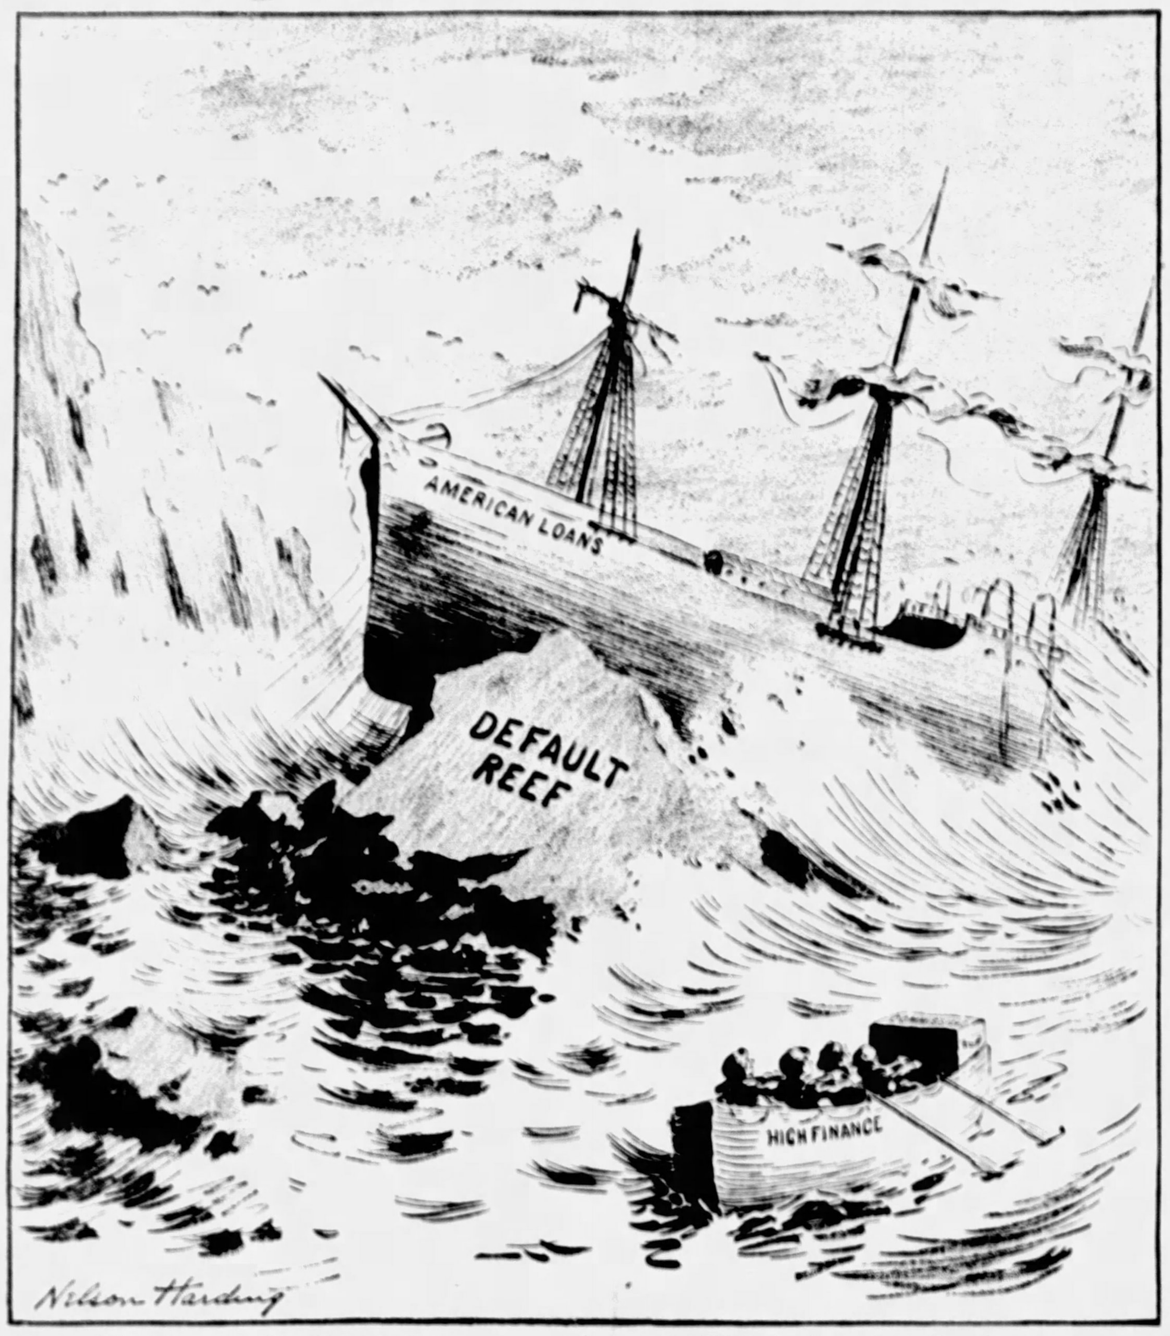
On Foreign Shores

By Nelson Harding



The ship went sailing down the bay,
Good-bye, good money, good-bye.
Investors' cash all stowed away,

While she is on the rocks today
Will salvage tugs stand by?
The lifeboat makes its getaway,
Will salvage tugs stand by?

Fooling a Woman

When I see a man going out of his way to fool a woman, I always wonder why. Fooling a woman is no FEAT. Women are the world's greatest Easy Marks!

* * *

This is because of woman's amazing ability to hypnotize herself. A woman can make herself believe anything she WANTS to believe. She doesn't need a man to help her kid herself. She can do that all alone.

You don't have to fool a woman. Just start her imagination working—and she'll fool herself. You don't have to coax her money from her. Just paint a rosy little picture for her, and she'll bring it to you on a silver tray, and beg you to take it away from her. That's why gigolos wear monogrammed shirt and keep sport cars.

* * *

And it is quite the same with her love as with her cash. A man doesn't have to tell her that he loves her. She "KNOWS" it—whether it's so or not. She knows it "just by the way he looks at her." Or by the things he does—or doesn't do. Or just by "intuition."

* * *

The easiest thing in the world for a woman to believe, is that she's LOVED. Or admired. Throw her a bit of flattery and she'll not only swallow the hook, but climb right up the line. She can think twice as fast as a man can talk; and when he is guessing the color of her eyes, she is already planning the wedding decorations and picking out the bridesmaids. She can even believe that his love is "honest," because he is fooling another woman for her sake.

Marriage doesn't cure her. Many a woman, who has lived half her life with a man, is still waiting for him to "make good." Or to give up drinking. Or to get tired of playing around with other women. But, alas, men have reformed—and germs have eaten them—but not for LOVE! And a man who is born with blue eyes or a yellow streak, will always be blue-eyed or yellow—or lazy or selfish or unfaithful.

* * *

Oh no. It is no feat to fool a woman. The feat is to prevent her from fooling HERSELF! And, if you do that, you rob her of most of her pleasure in life. Don't believe those who tell you that modern women are hard-boiled. They may look that way; but, at heart, every normal woman is and always will be just a half-minute egg!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Jan. 18.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Early up, finding the Boston sitting in the middle of the floor fast asleep and aroused the household to see. Nor, being deaf, did he awaken for 10 minutes. So out and came upon James Forbes, the playwright, in front of my quarters.

Thence to call on David Adlerblum, the accountant, saluting along the way Blyth Daly, Russell Patterson and Bide Dudley. Afterward shopping, buying a neat pair of black suspenders from Dave Levy, the first worn in 20 years. Home to find Queenie Smith and Robert Garland.

To the Will H. Hayses for dinner and others there were the Kent Coopers, the Bernard Gimbles, Count and Countess von Luckner, the Roy Howards and the Conrad Nagels. Afterward watched a movie, talked to Lucius Boomer, the hotel man, awhile. So to prayers and sleep.

A sheaf of unsigned and highly annoying communications today recalls Mark Twain's answer to a long time anonymous correspondent, who finally revealed his name. Twain replied: "I have long wanted to meet you, get acquainted and kill you."

* * *

Yet most mail is pleasant. For instance, Lisle Bell, finishing up another subject observes, for no reason at all: "Don't you love to watch the athletic girl breathe? You just know she is discovering oxygen."

And Dr. J. W. Darrell, another witty glossarian, wants to know how confidence can return to this country with people changing tooth-pastes every week?

Thingumbubs: Damon Runyon occupies a pent house atop a Broadway hotel . . . Geo. Ade has a geisha girl tattoed on his arm . . . He got it at a sailors' picnic when a reporter . . . Martin Johnson, who photographs ferocious wild animals, is a glutton for marshmallow sundaes . . . Don Clarke sleeps with all the bedroom lights on . . . Gene Fowler takes long walks wearing carpet slippers . . . Lilyan Tashman buys more hats than any other movie actress . . . Morton Downey still has the flutters at the microphone . . . Frank McIntyre has breakfasted on fried mush every winter for 25 years . . . Maybe that's the reason.

I don't know how others feel, but all of a sudden I'm utterly fed up bellowing like a dying calf at those Jackie Cooper talkies.

George Gershwin expresses the modesty I should like to achieve should I attain his niche in the hall of fame. At opening nights of musicals, for which he writes the score, he does not go out between acts for back slaps. If he leads the orchestra it is with enormous self-effacement. At parties he will be found timidly in a corner, completely surprised if recognized. He will not permit his name used for advertising indorsements, and when he appears professionally in public he takes a bow as though he were hunting some place to hide. In a vast city of expert showoffs he is a welcome contrast.

* * *

Gershwin, long-faced and with a pugnaciously protruding under jaw, belies the popular conception of the esthetic composer with pale cheeks and fever-bright eyes. His complexion is ruddy, his hair, instead of the tornado-tossed shock, is worn en brosse like a sleek drawing room hound. His coat collar has a way of hiking up in the back with such regularity it has become a trade mark—like Mayor Walker's hat dip or Flo Ziegfeld's blue collar.

Of all the band conductors, I prefer the veteran John Philip Sousa. He wields the baton as leisurely as an old French nurse knitting laconically in the Bois. Yet with such desultory movements he seems to draw out the stirring tempo of a march as no one I have ever seen. And I am by the way of being a fool for marches.

* * *

Much of the full-flexed enthusiasm for Tammany is inspired, I believe, by the rousing way bands play its theme tune, "Tammany," when members march. And that reminds me I don't hear "Tammany" any more. Has it been discarded? And might I suggest in my killing way they substitute the opening bars of Sing Sing?

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

How are you going to vote this year, lady? As you think? Or as your husband thinks?

Recently an indignant wife tossed that problem into this column. Up at her house, they were having ructions. All because she was making campaign speeches for her club and her husband said they were raising Cain with his business.

"If your candidate wins," said he, "mine will lose and I don't stand in with that other crowd. What's more—it makes a fellow feel like 30 cents to have his wife speech-making against his party. You've gotta quit—"

But the lady opined she wouldn't, and asked us if she wasn't right. So we printed her letter. And then —

What's your bet? Six hundred and fifty-three answers received to that letter. Out of that number, how many—in this land of women's rights—said that the lady should vote as she wished?

EXACTLY TWENTY-SEVEN!

Put THAT on your adding machine and total what you wish. Then tune in on the Voice Of America while it tells Mamma where to head in. First, from Shreveport, La., this—

Dear Miss Robinson:

One of the greatest things that is ruining the world today is the woman and her clubs. I am a woman, but I am not defending them. If we women would stay in our place, as God meant us to the world would be much better off.

Politics are too dirty for women to take any part in them. It's a man's business, and since women vote they should vote according to their husbands' wishes so that they may help them . . . ANY WOMAN WHO LOVES HER HUSBAND WILL VOTE AS HE DECIDES.

A Shreveport Times Reader.

Then this, from Fort Sam Huston, Tex.

Dear Miss Robinson:

No wife should vote in a way to either hurt her husband's business or his feelings.

In the case of this Mrs. Ellis, who wrote you, her husband made her living, all these years. . . he made it possible for her to join those clubs and to enjoy the leisure which she is now having, while he still stays on the job. Then why should she bite the hand that feeds her?

IF A WOMAN PUTS HER CLUB BEFORE HER HUSBAND, SHE SHOULD MOVE OVER TO THE CLUB AND SEE HOW FAR SHE GETS.

RALPH REED.

And then, just one out of that valiant 27.

Dear Miss Robinson:

This idea that a woman should vote with her husband is absurd! If all wives voted with their husbands what would be the sense in letting women vote at all? It would just be a waste of time and money.

No high-minded woman of today is going to let her husband rule her like that. If a woman is good enough for a man to marry and intelligent enough to raise a man's children and spend his money and guard his reputation, WHY CAN'T HE TRUST HER TO RUN HER OWN THOUGHTS?

Some one will reply that men have tried to shield women from the hard things of life by keeping them out of politics. That's a joke. They just want to keep the field clear for themselves, that's all, and they are afraid women will interfere with some of their schemes. IT'S A WOMAN'S MORAL DUTY TO HELP RUN THE WORLD AS MUCH AS IT IS A MAN'S . . . AND ANY WOMAN WHO IS TOO COWARDLY OR TOO SQUEAMISH TO "MIX IN POLITICS" SHOULD BE ASHAMED OF HERSELF.

Many people won't think much of my opinion, for I am only 19—BUT I SPEAK FOR THE YOUNGER GENERATION. You can bet we won't allow our husbands to think they can run our minds for us.

Debtors as Dictators

(Copyright, 1932, The Curtis Publishing Company.)
Reprinted from Saturday Evening Post of January 16, 1932, by Permission of the Editor.

THERE is a new thing in the world—debtors as dictators to their creditors, debtors persisting in following the courses that have brought them close to ruin, and refusing to take the clear road to solvency.

Furthermore, these debtors persist in unloading the results of their PAST WARS and their PRESENT FOLLIES on their creditor.

There is a second new thing in the world—creditors taking the initiative in plans to relieve debtors of their obligations. Credit this to some of our INTERNATIONAL AMERICANS AND THEIR PROPAGANDA, ably seconding that of Europe.

The war to end war has been followed by competitive preparations for the next war. America today is in a position where, instead of curtailing her Army and her Navy, ordinary prudence may force her to extraordinary expenditures to safeguard her shores. And this in the face of a staggering debt incurred for the last war and mounting taxation to meet the demands of the veterans of that and other wars.

Distasteful as it may be to us, bad as it will be to our finances, NO ONE BUT A FOOL WILL ADVOCATE UNPREPAREDNESS IN AN ARMED AND ANGRY WORLD. We want no more of Europe's wars, but defense is a duty that we cannot disregard. "Peace hath her victories no less renown'd than war," but a peaceful nation can win no victories over a warlike invader.

Today anyone who wants the other cheek slapped need only turn it.

WE believe in drastic disarmament, but we do not believe in drastic debt reduction to help the European nations arm against one another—and possibly against ourselves. Little has happened since the war to lead one to hope that the continental nations will have a change of heart when the disarmament conference meets in February.

If they do, Europe will ultimately be able to pay her debts. If they do not, and we cancel the debts, we shall simply be pouring money down a rat hole.

And we have no money to waste, none to give away with a fine, large gesture. From day to day the ticker has recorded the story of our crumbling wealth. An army of the unemployed has reiterated it.

We have our troubles, no less than other nations. Europe must forget her quaint notion that America is an inexhaustible mine of money and every American a millionaire.

Unless things pick up and taxes go down, a millionaire will soon be a curiosity over here.

Aside from Europe's unwillingness to economize on present preparations for war—and FRANCE IS THE KEYSTONE OF THAT ARCH—she wants us to shoulder German reparations, for that is what cancellation means, as Germany will probably refuse to pay them any longer.

REPARATIONS ARE IN NO SENSE OUR AFFAIRS. They are purely a business between Germany and the several allied nations.

We refused to take reparations or to share in the division of Germany's colonies.

Apparently it has never occurred to the allegedly victorious allies—LITTLE HAS OCCURRED TO THEM THAT IS NOT AT THE EXPENSE OF AMERICA—that they might strengthen Germany economically and lessen the tension all around by handing back some of her colonies to their wartime enemy.

That would be what the French call a beau geste.

They are not given to financial ones for themselves, though they are STRONG FOR AMERICAN ONES. Nor has it apparently occurred to our debtors to examine other than their cash resources to see what they can offer us to scale down their already partially forgiven debts.

Willingness to pay what one can is always a softening influence on a creditor. Great Britain, for instance, has island colonial possessions off our coast that she might tender as a partial offset to her debts.

All these factors, among others, are involved in "capacity to pay." There is no desire over here to press our debtors beyond that point, but incapacity to pay which is unwillingness to pay is another matter. Of all our debtors, Great Britain is at the moment probably less able to live up to her obligations than any of the other allies.

INCIDENTALLY, less of her debt has been forgiven, but so far her payments to America have been met by collections from other nations. They have not come out of taxation levied at home.

Incapacity to pay now should not affect the future, when capacity to pay may be fully restored. Leniency at the moment and cancellation regardless of what the future may hold are two very different things.

Why cancel or scale down, without future recourse, at a time when the world is probably in the depths of its depression?

RIGHT NOW THE INDIVIDUAL IN AMERICA WHO CANNOT PAY HIS DEBTS IS NOT BEING OFFERED EITHER MORATORIA OR FORGIVENESS. Though a debtor may well ask for grace when he can show inability to pay, it is not sound practice to demand cancellation of a debt until one has cut down or cut out luxuries, such as large competitive navies and armies, and one is actually bankrupt.

NOR can we see any reason why the private loans of our international bankers should receive preferential treatment.

At the worst, they were made HASTILY, GREEDILY, AT BEST, FOOLISHLY. The so-called war debts—some of them incurred to maintain the trade of the allies, some for post-war purposes—are now in the hands of private investors. THEY ARE A PRIOR LIEN.

They should receive preferential treatment. They can be paid if Europe will put her house in order.

But so long as her expenditures for war take precedence over her expenditures for peace; so long as marching men are more important in her scheme of things than working men; so long as she prefers ancient hatreds to new friendships, one can only explain with the late Baron Rosen, who came to America from Russia, "God bless the Atlantic Ocean" and WISH THAT IT WERE TWICE AS WIDE.
